MILL VALLEY BURGLARY

Government Wants Papers Of Ellsberg

By GEORGE NEVIN

Daniel Ellsberg and the U. S. government are at odds again.

The leaker of the Pentagon Papers wants to get back some papers stolen from his Mill Valley home and later recovered, but the Department of Defense wants the documents too.

And while the squabble goes on, a young man suspected of burglarizing Ellsberg's hilltop home is in Marin County Jail on other charges, including one of bombing a Mill Valley police car.

In a 50-minute meeting last night, a lawyer retained by Ellsberg and a Department of Defense official could not agree on who will get the disputed items, some of them confidential government documents.

Emerging from the squad room of the Mill Valley police station, San Francisco attorney Benjamin Dreyfus said, "The issue isn't resolved. We'll meet later. I don't know when."

Frank A. Bartimo, one of the investigators in the Pentagon Papers case, slipped out a back door, accompanied by a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent. He had flown in from Washington to meet with Dreyfus and William A. Walsh, Mill Valley police chief.

The Oct. 1 burglary at Ellsberg's house at 630 West Blithedale Avenue was a typical local burglary and had no espionage or political motivation, said deputy district attorney Ernest V. Zunino. Also taken were camera and stereo equipment, he said.

Not all the papers have been recovered, and police are still looking for the rest of them.

The man Zunino believes pulled the burglary "is not a 'plumber,'" he said, referring to the notorious White House operation revealed in the Watergate investigation.

Quinn is in Marin County Jail, charged with another Mill Valley burglary, resisting arrest, possessing stolen property and the Oct. 16 bombing of Chief Walsh's unmarked patrol car.

Zunino said property stolen from another Mill Valley home was given by Quinn to friends, who turned it over to police. In the course of investigating that burglary, police came across the stolen papers and linked Quinn to the Ellsberg burglary, he said.

Walsh said last night he has looked at some of the papers.

Some are classified government documents while others appear to be Ellsberg's personal papers, which Ellsberg is using to prepare a book.

When the documents were recovered by Mill Valley police, Walsh said, he called U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in San Francisco because some appeared to be government pa-

Petaluma Marina Wins An Approval

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Construction of the first phase of a controversial $2.2 million marina at the mouth of the Petaluma River was approved narrowly yesterday by the Bay Conservation and development Commission.

The application by W. Patrick Boland Jr. of Nicasio was endorsed 13-1, the exact majority needed to pass. Ten of the voting commissioners were absent, among them Marin's representative, Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini.

Tiburon Mayor Albert Aramburu cast the sole "no" vote. Belvedere Vice Mayor Thomas S. Price voted for the project.

Approval was recommended by the commission's staff on the grounds that its plan showed the site as appropriate for such uses, that only 40 of the 400 boat berths are involved in the first phase, and that the project will add almost 32 acres to the surface of the bay because Boland has excavated the marina behind a dike that will be breached as part of the work.

The decision was a rare rebuff to environmental and citizen groups that have fought a long battle against the marina, primarily on the ground the hull project could interfere with nearby wildlife areas.

Objections to the project were raised by the Save San Francisco Bay Association, Californians Organized to Acquire Access to State Tidelands, Madrone Audubon Society, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, California Natural Areas Coordinating Council, Sonoma Valley Environmental Council and several citizens. The state Fish and Game Department withdrew its earlier objections.

Favoring the marina was the Petaluma Area Chamber of Commerce, which said it "will enhance the aesthetics of the approaches to the area," provide for partial answer to the need for boat facilities and add to Sonoma's tax base.

Boland's dredging contracting company, Shellmaker Inc., still will need a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers. The corps estimated last month that its environmental impact statement on the project will take approximately a year to complete.

The 112-acre site is on the Sonoma County side of the river mouth, immediately south of the Highway 37 bridge. The commission's staff said its impact on nearby marshes would be minimal because it also is bounded on its south side by a railroad line.

Planned are a 400-berth marina, 200-seat restaurant, bulk sand depot, barge and boat storage areas, small boat repair facility, yacht sales, dry dock and shops and offices for marine supplies. The first

Expansion Of Gnoss Field Would Be Bad, Study Says

Damage Would Result To Nearby Properties

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Proposed expansion of Gnoss Field airport near Novato may severely damage the future value of nearby lands zoned for residental use, an economic consultant has concluded.

The consultant also reports finding no evidence to support a contention that expansion of the county-owned airfield will stimulate commercial and industrial growth.

Those key conclusions are contained in an 18-page study of what will happen to land values if the proposed Gnoss Field master plan is adopted and carried out by county supervisors.

The $2,500 study, made by Keyser-Marston Associates of San Francisco, was ordered by supervisors last April after County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney advised it was needed to avoid possible inverse condemnation of neighboring properties.

During that April 2 meeting, Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who supports expansion, predicted the study would show that surrounding lands will benefit from a bigger airport and not suffer depressed values.

Baptiste said yesterday he could not comment on the consultant's negative findings since he had not read the study.

On Tuesday, however, the county aviation commission expressed dissatisfaction with the study and appointed a three-member committee to probe its validity.

The study makes no recommendation as to whether the county should move ahead with the master plan, which calls for about $7 million worth of improvements over the next 20 years.

Those improvements include a second runway and facilities to accommodate about 600 based aircraft, presently numbering 135.

But its findings run counter to arguments that a larger general aviation airport is needed to encourage more commercial-industrial growth north of Novato.

"It is widely believed that development of the airport should enhance the prospects for commercial and industrial development in the airport vicinity," the consultant wrote. "While this belief is logical on its face ... there is no hard evidence to substantiate it."

While saying no firm conclusion could be reached, the consultant said that if airport development were a strong factor in attracting industry it would have been documented in other areas, but has not been.

Surveys of industries around Buchanan Field in Contra Costa County indicated the firms were not influenced greatly in locating there by the presence of an airport, the consultant reported.

Currently, about 90 acres near Gnoss Field are zoned for industrial use and five acres for commercial. The consultant estimated that only 45 acres in

U.S. Unemployment Rate Jumps To Highest Level In 13 Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nationwide unemployment rate reached its highest level in 13 years last month, jumping to 6.5 per cent, the Labor Department said today.

A total of 790,000 persons were added to the jobless rolls in November, pushing unemployment to 6 million. The November 6.5 per cent was the highest since October, 1961, when unemployment aleo reached 6.5 per cent.

President Ford said in an interview published this week that such a rate would "indicate a very serious added deterioration" in the country's darkening economic picture and he would take steps to reheat the economy.

Ford has asked Congress for an extra $2.5 billion in public works and unemployment insurance if the unemployment rate averages 6 per cent over three months. The rate for the last three months has averaged more than 6 per cent.

The National Unemployment Assistance Act, which has not been passed by Congress, would provide $500 million in federal funds to create 83,000 more jobs and another $2 billion for unemployment insurance. A total of $1 billion in federal emergency funds has already been sent to cities around the country and is helping provide 170,000 jobs.

A White House spokesman said today's announcement dramatizes the need for Congress to act on the proposal Ford made Oct. 8.

The unemployment rate averaged 6 per cent in October and 5.8 per cent in September of this year — pushing the average to over 6 per cent for three straight months.

The increased November jobless figure was accounted for mainly by dismissals and layoffs, the Labor Department said.

REDEVELOPMENT PLANS

4 Shapes Confront San Rafael

What shape will redevelopment take in the City of San Rafael?

That question will confront the San Rafael City Council when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday as the city redevelopment agency to consider the future of local urban renewal.

At issue are four redevelopment "sketch plans" — preliminary redevelopment proposals representing varying degrees of private development and public investment — prepared by teams of San Francisco consulting firms.

City leaders may embrace one of the proposals, or they may elect to fashion a new plan using various elements of the sketch plans provided by consultants.

Plans one and two are examined today by Independent-Journal reporter Nels Johnson in the first of a three-part series on the proposals.

PLAN ONE

Widespread development, including a regional shopping center of up to 1 million square feet at the foot of Fourth Street, is envisioned in Redevelopment Sketch Plan One.

The proposal, which attempts to capitalize on the market potential generated by the county as a whole, proposes major changes in the city's downtown, the Francisco Boulevard corridor and the city canal and bayshore area.

"The expected effect is a high level of tax revenues, and significant and comprehensive economic and environmental revitalization," according to the plan.

The plan would involve substantial private development and public investment, require relocation of large numbers of existing businesses and result in substantial economic benefits, according to consultants.

The plan seeks to enhance the image of the city by "capturing the market potential for extensive redevelopment activity throughout the project area with major relocation, rehabilitation and site acquisition programs," consultants contend.

The proposal requires "substantial long-term fiscal and policy commitments to the redevelopment of central San Rafael," according to consultants.

The plan makes these proposals:

DOWNTOWN

Development proposed downtown focuses on a regional shopping center including three major department stores and parking for up to 5,000 cars. The complex would embrace a 20-acre-to-30-acre site near the foot of Fourth Street, and would include a number of specialty retail businesses.

Construction of up to 300,000 square feet of office space downtown also is envisioned, including provisions for up to 300 parking spaces.

The plan also proposes up to 200 housing units on Fourth Street and on E Street, as well

See PLAN ONE, page 8

PLAN TWO

Intense redevelopment of San Rafael's Francisco boulevards corridor — including erection of a mammoth 1-million-square-foot regional shopping complex — and limited change elsewhere in the city are proposed in Redevelopment Sketch Plan Two.

The proposal to concentrate redevelopment activity in East San Rafael with a regional shopping complex and other county-serving uses would allow downtown and the city's waterfront to "by and large follow existing land use trends," according to city consultants.

The proposal is intended to "achieve maximum tax revenue with the least public money spent, and could be accomplished in the near term," consultants contend.

The plan seeks to enhance the entryway and image of central San Rafael by "concentrating a few major redevelopment activities in the Highway 101 corridor and the downtown," as well as by making canal-related activities "more visible" and by providing a "pleasing pedestrian environment" downtown.

The plan makes these proposals:

DOWNTOWN

Development proposed downtown includes construction of new housing and "redesigning Fourth Street and related shopping streets as pedestrian-oriented activity areas, with limit-

NO MORE QUESTIONS — Nelson A. Rockefeller made his last appearance yesterday before the House Judiciary Committee to answer questions bearing on his confirmation as vice president. An informal poll indicated the committee would approve Rockefeller next week by a substantial margin. (UPI Telephoto)

Rocky's Confirmation Appears A Certainty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee appears ready to approve Nelson Rockefeller's nomination as vice president at the end of what may be the most thorough congressional investigation of any presidential nominee.

The last day of questioning was yesterday. Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J. ruled the hearings closed and said the panel would vote next Tuesday.

UPI's informal survey showed that no more than 10 of the 38 members — all Democrats — would oppose Rockefeller. Eight committee Democrats opposed Gerald R. Ford's vice presidential nomination a year ago.

The House will probably vote on Rockefeller the week of Dec. 16, just before the Christmas recess. The Senate has scheduled a vote for next Tuesday, and Rockefeller is expected to be confirmed overwhelmingly.

The House hearings began in mid-November, but after a lengthy delay to investigate Rockefeller's background further, there were no major damaging disclosures.

The House hearings did reveal that the 84 members of the Rockefeller family have a joint fortune of about $1 billion, not counting estates, art collections, jewelry and personal property.

Details of the Rockefeller stock portfolio let the public look inside the fortune of one of the nation's richest families.

Some members, particularly liberal Democrats, said they feared a potential conflict of interest between Rockefeller's great wealth and his powers as vice president could never be reconciled.

Such a conflict, he responded, never arose during 40 years of public service, but Rockefeller pledged to put his wealth — nearly $218 million — in a blind trust.

The other major concern was Rockefeller's $2.5 million in gifts and loans to associates. The nominee promised not to make large gifts or loans to public figures if he is confirmed.

It was revealed only this week that his brother Laurance loaned $30,000 to former Republican National Chairman William E. Miller, Barry Goldwater's 1964 running mate.

Rockefeller insisted that there was nothing "illegal, immoral or wrong" about the loan, made to allow Miller to stay in politics when he was considering quitting.

Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., said Rockefeller failed to reveal a $28,000 gift to Henry A. Kissinger — the expense of lending the Secretary of State and his wife a family jet for their Acapulco honeymoon.

Gas Ration Power May Go To Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress may soon give President Ford standby power to ration gasoline.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has introduced legislation to authorize rationing and other emergency energy conservation measures, with an apparent tacit endorsement from the White House and a promise from congressional leaders to give the matter top priority before the expected pre-Christmas adjournment.

Jackson said yesterday there is a "very real and immediate prospect" of another energy crisis such as the one that produced last winter's lines at filling stations.

He cited the recent coal strike plus the danger of a Middle East war and a renewed oil embargo.

"Such reductions in our energy supply will result in severe economic hardship at the least, and, if prolonged, could push our economy to the brink of depression," he said.

Jackson's legislation, in the form of an amendment combining features of two previously introduced bills, would give the President specific rationing authority, with a provision for congressional review.

Although the administration printed gas rationing tickets last winter, the President could have imposed rationing only if he declared a "national security emergency" under the Defense Production Act.

Jackson's measure also includes powers to force increases in domestic production, further allocation authority and requirements for establishing a national strategic reserve.

It comes at a time when the nation's gasoline reserves are at comfortable level.

They stood as of the week ending Nov. 29 at 219.7 million barrels.

In related developments:

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton yesterday told a congressional joint economic subcommittee that if voluntary conservation fails, gasoline rationing, a gasoline tax and a ceiling on petroleum imports might be needed.

The Federal Energy Administration's chief scientist, Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg, said Americans must choose between nuclear fission with its potential hazards or very expensive solar generators to produce most of the country's energy in the 21st century.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Shriver May Seek Presidency

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sargent Shriver said yesterday he is not yet a presidential candidate, but acknowledged he is thinking about making a bid for his party's nomination.

Shriver

"I am flattered that my name has been under consideration," the 1972 vice presidential candidate told reporters, "especially by a leader of the party."

That leader was Richard J. Daley, who was reported in a Chicago newspaper to favor Shriver for the 1976 presidential nomination.

Shriver, however, insisted he should not be considered "an unannounced presidential candidate."

He said he probably would make many speeches throughout the nation between now and the 1976 convention, but this should not be construed as a presidential campaign.

Drug Rationing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The rationing of pain-killing drugs made with codeine is inevitable next year because of critical shortages of legal opium, according to a lawyer for the nation's three registered opium importers.

"The impact will gradually reach the consumer level as it becomes difficult and then virtually impossible to fill codeine prescriptions at the pharmacy and in the hospital," attorney Jane Lang McGrew told the Senate Health subcommittee yesterday.

She said demand for the drug had increased so heavily that it "threatens the adequacy of medical care in the United States."

Meany Asks Unity

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany has called on organized labor to unite in a "spirit of tolerance" behind the Democratic party despite bitter disputes over proposed reforms.

Meany, who refused to support Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., in 1972, issued his unity call at the Democratic midterm convention through his chief political spokesman, Al Barkan.

Meany's call for unity was seen by political veterans here as highly significant because it has been the AFL-CIO leadership that has by and large led the fight over controversial provisions in the proposed party charter.

Cyprus Alert

NICOSIA (UPI) — Turkish invasion forces "afraid of trouble" went on alert today on the eve of exiled Archbishop Makarios' return to regain the presidency of war-divided Cyprus.

Zafer A. Zihni, spokesman for the Turkish Cypriot community, said commanders ordered a precautionary alert to protect the island's minority from attacks by Greek Cypriots.

Makarios was scheduled to arrive today but delayed his return a day because of what a Greek Cypriot spokesman called "technical reasons." The spokesman declined to elaborate.

Soyuz Mission

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soyuz-16 cosmonauts today entered their fifth day of tests designed to simulate next July's planned orbital linkup with an American Apollo craft.

If cosmonauts Lt. Col. Anatoly V. Filipchenko and Nikolai N. Rukavishnikov follow the exactly planned Soyuz-Apollo mission, they should come down sometime Sunday morning.

The cosmonauts, who form the prime reserve crew for next year's flight, have carried out a series of medical, biological and atmospheric tests in preparation for the linkup with the U.S. craft.

Wreckage Looted

MASKELIYA, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Hundreds of workers from nearby tea plantations swarmed over the wreckage of a Moslem pilgrim plane today searching for valuables scattered over rugged jungle slopes.

"It has been chaotic," a rescue official at the scene said. "We have had a terrible time trying to stop looting."

Police said about 10,000 villagers, some carrying babies and lunch baskets, visited the crash site. Debris was scattered over a three-mile area.

In addition to trouble with looters, authorities said wild animals in the rugged jungle area made searching for bodies dangerous after dark.

Copter Downed

SAIGON (UPI) — Communists using a heat-seeking missile shot down a giant troop transport helicopter north of Saigon, killing 15 government soldiers, a military spokesman said today.

The Communists also raided a militia outpost within 10 miles of the capital yesterday and stepped up shellings against government bases across South Vietnam.

The Saigon military command said the twin-rotor CH47 Chinook helicopter was hit by a Soviet-made SA7 Grail missile 60 miles from Saigon and crashed on the outskirts of encircled An Loc.

Danish Election

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Denmark's 12 political parties launched their second election campaign in a year today, debating how to combat inflation, unemployment and the energy crisis.

Prime Minister Poul Hartling called yesterday for new national elections Jan. 9 after his economic program was roundly denounced by the Danish parliament.

Hearst Widow Dies In New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Sr., whose husband founded the Hearst publishing empire, died in her Manhattan apartment yesterday. She was 92.

Mrs. Hearst, the former Millicent Willson, was born in New York City, July 16, 1882. She married William Randolph Hearst, Sr., in 1903 in New York. Hearst died in 1951.

Mrs. Hearst was appointed to the Panama Exposition Board for New York in 1914 and chairman of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense during World War I.

She founded the Milk Fund for Children in 1924. In 1956 New York Mayor Robert Wagner presented her with a scroll from the city for "years of service in behalf of others and many gracious and kindly philanthropies."

In 1957 she received a gold medal from the city "for outstanding services to children." She was also elected a benefactress of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

MRS. W. R. HEARST SR.
Art benefactress

The Hearsts had five sons: George, who died in 1972; John, who died in 1958; William A. Randolph Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst Newspapers and chairman of the Hearst Corp. Executive Committee; David, vice president of the Hearst Corp.; and his twin brother, Randolph, chairman of the Hearst Corp. Board of Directors and president of the San Francisco Division which publishes the San Francisco Examiner.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Hearst's sister, Anita Irwin, died. The two sisters had shared an apartment.

In addition to her three living sons, she is survived by 15 grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in St. Patrick's Cathedral Chapel of Our Lady Monday morning.

Sister Ray Coauthors Music Book

Sister M. Dominic Ray, founder and director of the American Music Research Center at Dominican College in San Rafael, is coauthor of a new book, "Gloria, Dei, the Story of California Mission Music."

The book, written in collaboration with Joseph H. Engbeck Jr., research writer for the state Parks Department, was published by the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

Lacking a written language, California Indians preserved much mythological and historical information through musical narratives that were chanted or sung.

With this background, the Indians were fascinated by the musical traditions of the Renaissance, introduced by the Spanish padres, and music became an important feature of mission worship.

The book, illustrated with photos and drawings, tells the story.

It is available for $2.50 from the State Parks Department, Post Office Box 2390, Sacramento, 95811 or at the Sonoma Mission in Sonoma.

Bellman Of Year Is Aptly Named

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Tony Baggs, 63, of the Statler-Hilton Hotel of Buffalo, N.Y., was given the Bellman of the Year Award yesterday for his adeptness at carrying other people's bags.

Baggs won a trip to Puerto Rico, a $500 U.S. Savings Bond and a set of luggage. He has been a bellman for 42 years.

The award was presented to Baggs at the meeting of the American Hotel and Motel Association.

MIAMI (UPI) — Meyer Lansky, the wizened little man believed to be the genius behind much of the underworld's financial success, has won his freedom.

The federal government has decided to give up its long, tedious fight to put the 72-year-old organized crime legend behind bars.

Prosecutor Dougald McMillan disclosed yesterday the Justice Department has decided not to appeal a decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals throwing out the only federal conviction ever made against Lansky.

Lansky had been sentenced to one year and a day in prison in June of 1973 for failing to comply with a grand jury subpoena served on him in Israel, where he was living.

The appeals court said the government failed to prove Lansky willfully and contemptuously avoided compliance.

3 Freed As Mexican Gunman Is Tricked

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexican authorities tricked a gunman into releasing three hostages and turning himself over to police last night, ending a five-hour siege at the French Embassy.

An Interior Ministry spokesman said the gunman burst into the embassy building in Mexico City at 2:30 p.m. and took three French diplomats hostage.

The spokesman identified the gunman as Miguel Angel Torres Enrique, 31, wanted for the 1973 murder of millionaire industrialist Eugenio Garza Sada and the slaying of two police officers in Monterrey this year.

French Ambassador Jean Beliard said Torres quickly took the consul general, vice consul and consulate secretary hostage at gunpoint.

The ambassador said he finally let them go at 7 p.m. "after many hours of negotiations, after the police had spoken to him by telephone."

The gunman demanded safe conduct out of the country and a flight to Paris in exchange for the lives of Consul General Raoul Spitalier, Vice consul Raymond Perez and Consulate Secretary Maurice Giraud.

An Interior Minister spokesman said plainclothesmen acting as supporters of Torres managed to lure him out of the embassy and talked him into releasing his hostages.

The gunman, still unaware the officers were policemen, was taken to Mexico City Airport, where federal security agents disarmed him.

Blood Pressure, Exams Linked

STORRS, Conn. (UPI) — University of Connecticut officials say the approach of final exams may have contributed to the high blood pressures found in 16 per cent of 3,200 students tested.

Maria Skinner, assistant to the dean of the School of Allied Health Professions, said yesterday the school and the Connecticut Heart Association's eastern chapter expected less than 10 per cent of the students to have high blood pressure.

Ex-Marin Man Jailed In Tax Case

I-J Special Report

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A former Marin County resident who was at onetime a top general distributor for Holiday Magic Inc. has been sent to federal prison for one year for income tax evasion.

James A. Hearn, 39, was sentenced Tuesday in U. S. District Court. Hearn is now a resident of Eustic, Fla., and his case was moved to Florida from Connecticut, where he was charged on six counts filed in April, after he changed residence.

He pleaded no contest this week to one of the charges — that he failed to file a 1968 tax return on a gross income for that year of $81,382. The other five charges against him and his wife, Avie, were dismissed.

During 1967 and 1968 the Hearns owned International Associates Inc., which operated a Holiday Magic distributorship. They were accused of not reporting his 1967-68 income of $149,860; her income in the same years of $110,662 and failing to report the corporation income.

Hearn is a former certified public accountant.

During his years with Holiday Magic he lived in Mill Valley and San Rafael and was said to have several times been the top producer of the distributors in the pyramid operation.

ELLSBERG

pers. Browning asked him to hold the papers until Bartimo could get to California.

"The federal government has no interest whatsoever in the personal property of Daniel Ellsberg", Browning told reporters yesterday. "But we are interested in whether the documents are classified or secret. If they are, we propose to take them."

But Dreyfus is just as determined the government will not get its hands on the papers.

"They didn't see any of them, and they haven't said they want any papers," Dreyfus said after last night's meeting. "We're not planning to file a suit unless they try to take them."

Walsh said he plans to keep the documents "for the time being" until Ellsberg and the government agree on their disposition.

Ellsberg and Anthony Russo were charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in the leaking of the Pentagon Papers to the press in July of 1971.

Ellsberg admitted furnishing the documents to newspapers but denied he broke the law.

The case was dismissed in May, 1973, by U.S. Judge Matt Byrne, who cited government misconduct in a break-in at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis J. Fielding.

Four persons, including White House aides John Erhlichman and G. Gordon Liddy, were convicted last summer of violating Dr. Fielding's civil rights.

Zunino said his only interest in the documents is as evidence in the burglary. He said he wants to check them for fingerprints.

He added he's still investigating the burglary but hopes to file charges soon.

That Ellsberg had been the victim of a burglary was not reported to the press by police because the Mill Valley City Council has ordered the police to withhold the names of burglary victims.

MARINA

phase is only for 40 boat slips and to breach the dike to flood the channel and basin.

The chairman of the commission, San Francisco attorney William Evers, said he voted for the permit despite "grave misgivings." The commission's plan for the area probably should be revised to prohibit such projects, he said.

Boland's permit from the commission requires him to provide facilities to pump out boat holding tanks to prevent sewage from being dumped into the marina. Only boats with holding tanks will be permitted to use the slips.

The permit also declares that its approval "should not be construed to commit the commission to future approval of any work on this site or in adjacent areas."

The Bay Conservation and Development Commission also:

KAPPAS — Unanimously adopted a cease and desist order barring further illegal bay fill at Kappas Yacht Harbor north of Sausalito, and ordered it to seek a permit for the illegal fill or have it removed. Sausalito attorney Hugh G. Lawrence, representing Kappas, said a permit will be sought for the 5,700 cubic yards of illegal fill.

CANAL — Unanimously adopted a 10-page comment sharply challenging the state Department of Water Resources' draft environmental impact report on the proposed Peripheral Canal east of the Delta. The report failed to consider effects of the canal on the bay, the commission's statement said.

GOODMAN — Received staff report that the state Court of Appeal has upheld the commission's jurisdiction over a marsh next to Goodman Building Supply Co. in Mill Valley. The company wanted to fill the marsh for a parking lot, and appealed the commission's denial of a permit on the basis it had no jurisdiction.

REGION — Approved formation of a "joint working group" of Bay Area regional agencies to draft legislation consolidating the agencies.

Fineless Month For Book Users

Sausalitans with overdue books and records will be forgiven all fines this month.

It's not the spirit of Christmas but the fact that the Sausalito Public Library will move to new quarters in the old Central School later this month.

Busy preparing for the move, library staff will not have time to send out overdue notices to borrowers and there will be no way to collect fines during the approximately three days of moving, librarian Patricia Shepard said.

The exact time of the move still is not known, according to the librarian.

She estimated the library will be closed for about two weeks for the move and a complete inventory.

Overdue books may be returned to the library desk during library hours or dropped into a book drop at the library after hours.

State Will Shut Down Liquor Firms

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — In one of the toughest actions of its type, the state will temporarily shut down major liquor wholesalers for allegedly making illegal kickbacks, officials disclosed today.

"Shutting them down for awhile will be very meaningful," said Peter Sexton, deputy director of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control.

Major wholesalers have been accused by the department along with 450 retailers of allegedly making and taking illegal kickbacks. All the wholesalers are located in Northern California.

Among wholesalers affected is Trombetta Distributors which has a wholesale outlet at 715 Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael.

Sexton declined to say how long the licenses would be suspended but it was expected that the shutdowns would be for at lease 15 days.

The state has already begun handing out fines and license suspensions to retailers who were charged with receiving free goods or services when purchasing liquor from wholesalers.

Three retailers with outlets in Marin — Cala Foods, Macy's and Kingston Trio Inc. of San Francisco (which operates the Trident Restaurant in Sausalito) — are among the firms charged. Sexton said all three have filed declarations asking for hearings on the allegations.

Coral Sea Sails, Wives Protest

ALAMEDA (UPI) — The Navy aircraft carrier Coral Sea sailed for the Western Pacific yesterday with the wives of some crewmen protesting the 60,000-ton vessel was unsafe and unsanitary.

The Navy said the Coral Sea would spend seven months with the 7th Fleet in the Pacific before returning to the Alameda Naval Air Station.

During the past several weeks some crewmen and their wives have criticized the Navy for the condition of the vessel.

Capt. Thomas Rogers Jr., the ship's commanding officer, disputed the complaints and said there had been renovative work done here.

12,500 Daily BART Riders

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit District has grabbed 22 per cent of the morning rush hour commuters crossing San Francisco Bay, according to a new study.

The state Department of Transportation said yesterday approximately 12,500 persons ride BART across the bay in the 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. period daily.

At the same time, the department said, AC Transit carries 12,700 passengers across the bay by bus during the morning rush hour and Greyhound Bus Lines carries 1,170 — down from 1,500 before Greyhound had a strike last month.

FIELD

the vicinity of the airport will be developed for industry by 1995, regardless of what happens at the airport.

Unlike land zoned for residential use, industrial land will suffer no ill effects from a larger airport.

Some 763 acres of residential land lie within the noise impact area which will be created by airport enlargement, the consultant said, adding that 48 of those acres fall within a high noise category where state law prohibits residential development.

(Under state law, residential development is tightly controlled in areas near airports. County officials currently are trying to establish those boundaries using noise level contours from present and projected airport use. Greater use of the airport, as proposed in the master plan, would expand those noise contours or boundaries outward.)

Based on growth projections, the study showed about 25 per cent (or 190 acres) of the 763 residential acres would normally develop if not restricted by airport expansion and increased noise.

Whether that land actually develops in the face of airport expansion depends on policies set by county supervisors.

While 48 acres is prohibited from residential development by state law, the other lands are subject to local noise regulation — meaning supervisors can prohibit residential development completely, authorize it with requirements for noise insulation, or authorize it with no strings attached.

Depending on the level of airport noise and the local restrictions imposed, property owners could suffer between $480,000 and $7.1 million in residual and speculative land value losses by 1995, the consultant concluded.

Additionally, he said, if supervisors opt to require special construction to decrease noise, the added cost could total $12,300 per dwelling which would price the homes out of the market.

"There is little doubt that given these increased construction costs an interior noise level insulation requirement would have practically the same effect . . . as outright prohibition on residential uses," the study found.

Discussion of the document by county supervisors is expected after the first of the year.

French Protest Move Of Capital

DRAGUIGNAN, France (UPI) — Angry residents of this southeastern French town threw rocks yesterday in protests against the government's decision to move the regional capital.

Draguignan had been the administrative capital of prefecture of Var, which includes part of the French Riviera.

Premier Jacques Chirac signed the transfer order Wednesday and said, "This decree will be immediately enforced."

Quentin Con Convicted Of Attack

A San Quentin convict was convicted yesterday in Marin Superior Court of slashing another inmate's throat with a razor.

The conviction of Louis A. Sullivan, 22, came despite the fact that the victim got on the stand and testified that everything he told the Marin County Grand Jury when it indicted Sullivan was false.

Sullivan, serving six to 50 years on a San Bernardino County statutory rape conviction, is to be sentenced Dec. 16 on the new felony assault conviction by Judge Charles Read Best, who presided over the six-day trial.

During its course, inmate Bruce G. Burk, 27, told the jury his entire testimony that led to Sullivan's indictment was untrue.

But deputy Dist. Atty. Peter J. Andersen questioned Burk about the "convict's code," which decrees death for informants, and Burk admitted he is a "marked man."

Burk had told the grand jury he was attacked by Sullivan and another inmate on July 29, and that his throat and cheek were slashed by a razor.

Ford Entertains Post Publisher

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Post Publisher Mrs. Philip L. Graham and executive editor Benjamin Bradlee were President Ford's guests at a White House dinner last night, ending the newspaper's longtime exclusion from White House affairs.

The two attended a state dinner in honor of visiting West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

Post reporters were banned from White House functions in the latter days of Nixon's presidency because of the newpaper's opposition to administration policies and its role in uncovering Watergate.

Dispute with boss

Colson Tells Haldeman's Call For Protecting Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson testified at the Watergate cover-up trial today that in March, 1973 defendant H.R. Haldeman wanted to make sure President Richard M. Nixon did "not appear to be covering up" the scandal.

Colson, who originally was indicted in the cover-up and went to jail after pleading guilty to a lesser charge, concluded his testimony by reading to the jury a memo about a conversation he had on March 23, 1973, with Haldeman —former White House chief of staff and one of five former Nixon aides on trial.

The March 23 conversation took place two days after former White House counsel John W. Dean III warned Nixon of a "growing cancer" on the presidency and laid out for him the story of Watergate.

"Bob said he was concerned that the President not appear to be covering up," Colson said in his memo. "I told Bob that I didn't think the President had done so."

Colson also recalled in the memo that he had urged Jeb Stuart Magruder, Nixon's deputy campaign manager, in January or February, 1972, to consider an intelligence-gathering plan drawn up by former White House aides E. Howard Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy —the plans which led to the Watergate break-in.

But Colson said he told Magruder he wasn't "advocating their plan because I didn't know what it was," but that it should be explored.

Colson said Haldeman had asked "what would happen if Hunt 'blew'" — if he went to he prosecutors with the truth about Watergate.

"I said I thought it would be very bad, that from what I knew he would say things that would be very damaging," the memo said. "Bob said, 'then we can't let that happen.'"

Yablonski Prosecutor Is Fired

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Richard A. Sprague, the special prosecutor who won five first-degree murder convictions in the Yablonski murder trials, has been fired over a dispute with his boss, District Attorney F. Emmett Fitzpatrick.

Sprague said yesterday he was fired as first assistant district attorney because he told the press that Fitzpatrick had lied.

Sprague had said publicly his boss repeatedly lied about his involvement in the case of Joseph F. Nardello Jr., a convicted blackmailer and extortionist. Media reports said Fitzpatrick once represented Nardello as a private attorney, and then last July, while district attorney, recommended a lenient sentence for Nardello in another case.

"He said that since I had spoken out to the press, that eliminated my effectiveness as a district attorney," Sprague said. "He asked me if I'd do this thing in a gentlemanly fashion and submit my resignation. I said I would not, because what I did was right."

Fitzpatrick, who called Sprague a "fine prosecutor for 17 years," said it was "personally unpleasant" for him to fire the assistant district attorney.

Referring to Sprague's accusations, Fitzpatrick said: "I did not lie. Everything I've said about the case was absolutely the unvarnished truth."

Fitzpatrick declined to comment further on the firing and would not discuss a decision by the Philadelphia Bar Association to investigate the Nardello case.

Minipark Improving Is Voted

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board last night voted to improve the minpark for senior citizens with benches and landscaping.

The Las Gallinas Sanitary District Board has contributed $1,500 toward landscaping the park in the 600 block of Adrian Way, on the sanitary district land, according to Marguerite F. Clark, secretary to the services district.

Board members will install the improvements.

The board voted to hire Peggy Hughes at $3 an hour and Landy Scott at $2 an hour as playground supervisors from 3 to 5 p.m. at McPhail School.

Burned Youth Off Critical List

A Los Ranchitos teen-ager burned in an explosion of gunpowder last Saturday, today was taken off the critical list at the St. Francis Hospital's burn center in San Francisco.

Paul Albertini, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Albertini of 15 Constance Drive, was still listed as in serious condition at the hospital.

His companion, Kirk Steffens, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald A. Steffens of 14 Constance Drive, less seriously burned was reported now in good condition.

The two were injured when gun powder in a can in the loft of the Albertini garage ignited.

Open Space Urged For Tam Acreage

The civics and conservation section of the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club yesterday recommended that about 14 acres on Mount Tamalpais proposed for residential development be purchased for open space.

Meeting at the outdoor art club, the group adopted a stand taken by the Marin Conservation League in a letter to the County Department of Environmental Services Nov. 15, according to Chairman Jan Mountjoy.

It urged that the land, located off Fern Canyon Road, be bought by one or more public agencies for open space to avoid adverse environmental impact through residential development.

Property owner Ellis A. Lando is proposing to divide six acres in county jurisdiction into three-acre homesites. The land division, if approved by county officials, would result in creating a third lot since another seven acres lie within Mill Valley city limits. The city also has opposed the land division.

Club members said the property should remain a part of the open space of the mountain and that the extension of public services for two or three homes would cause environmental damage, such as scarring of the hillside, pollution from septic tanks and fire hazards, Mrs. Mountjoy said.

The group also recommended that zoning for the land be changed from one dwelling on three acres to one dwelling on 10 acres.

EN ROUTE — Pioneer 11, flung out of Jupiter's orbit and further into the solar system, will flash between Saturn and its three rings to make a blind pass of the moon Titan, a likely place for the existence of advanced life. Titan, one-third the size of earth, has the right chemicals, the same age as earth and an atmosphere which would produce the right surface temperatures, space scientists reported this week.

(UPI Telephoto)

Elevation Unusual For Pioneer Trip

MOUNTAIN VIEW (UPI) — To get from Jupiter at one side of the solar system to Saturn on the other Pioneeer 11 is soaring up 17 degrees to an altitude of 130 million miles above the sun.

The elevation is unusual. Spacecraft venturing to other planets normally travel along the same plane as the sun and its orbiting planets.

"This will be a very interesting trip, because right now we have only a two-dimensional picture of the interplanetary medium," said project scientist John Wolfe.

He said the elevation may give Pioneer a chance to discover which way the solar wind blows. Theories on the question differ, with some scientists saying it moves in all directions and others saying there is a pronounced pattern to the stream of ionized gas moving 1 million miles per hour.

"Seventeen degrees doesn't sound like much, but we have an inkling of something that should be very pronounced at 17 degrees," Wolfe said.

Pioneer zipped 26,000 miles from giant Jupiter's surface Monday and was hurled by the planet's orbital motion on a five-year journey to the three-ringed planet Saturn. Today, Pioneer was 3 million miles from Jupiter.

At NASA's Ames Research Center, scientists with computers were analysing data concerning Jupiter's weather, internal structure, its 13 moons, and the electrons and protons in its radiation belts and magnetic field.

With a width of 9 million miles, the magnetic field is so vast that if it could be seen by human eyes on earth, it would appear four times larger than the sun — even though it is six times the distance from earth.

It will take months for hundreds of color pictures Pioneer took in the Jovian regions to be rectified by University of Arizona computers.

Don't Look Directly At Sun's Eclipse, Optometrists Warn

The Mrin County Optometric Society has issued a warning to county residents not to try to look directly at the partial eclipse of the sun expected in the early morning hours next Friday.

The eclipse will occur beginning at approximately 6 a.m. and will last one to two hours. At midpoint, the moon will cover anywhere from 15 to 35 per cent of the sun, with greater coverage in Northern California than in the southern part of the state.

According to Dr. Charles McBane, president of the local society, the sun's rays, when viewed directly, will burn a spot on the retina of the eye, typically at the most important vision point.

When this happens, he said, the person suffers a permanent blind spot which eliminates the central point of vision.

Dr. McBane said the retina has no pain receptors and gives no warning when it is being burned.

There is almost no safe way to view a solar eclipse directly, he said. Sunglasses do not offer sufficient protection, and the use of a double layer of completely overexposed photo film is not foolproof, the doctor said. In fact, 40 per cent of those injured during a 1970 eclipse were using some sort of protective device.

Dr. McBane also warned against the use of binoculars, opera glasses, telescopes and camera lenses, which concentrate the sun's rays.

He suggested, instead, an indirect projection method, such as a sunscope, but he added the safest way to watch a solar eclipse is to see it on television or in pictures in the newspapers.

Shakespeare Play Opens Tonight

A performance of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" by the College of Marin department of theater arts will debut tonight at 8 o'clock at Theater III in San Anselmo.

The play, directed by James C. Dunn, will be performed 15 times through Dec. 28. It will run in repertory with another college production, "Merry Wives of Windsor," which began Nov. 15.

Dunn moved the play from the Elizabethan period in which it was written, and is normally performed, to turn-of-the-century Edwardian England. He feels the sophistication of the two central characters, Benedick and Beatrice, warrants it.

Dan Caldwell of San Anselmo will play Benedick and Betty Hager of San Rafael will portray Beatrice.

The play is scheduled for 8 p.m. performances tonight, tomorrow Sunday, and Dec. 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 19, 22, 26, 27 and 28, and 2 p.m. matinees tomorrow and Dec. 14.

PLAN ONE

FRANCISCO BOULEVARDS

The plan endeavors to "encourage more attractive and intensive utilization of land in the Francisco boulevards corridor by clustering such uses as auto dealerships and providing amenities to attract garden offices."

Development envisioned includes up to 750,000 square feet of garden offices and parking for up to 2,500 cars, with offices located on both sides of the boulevard corridor.

An auto center of up to 15 dealerships is also proposed on the west side of the Francisco corridor, requiring relocation of present dealerships now located elsewhere.

A canal-oriented commercial area of up to 150,000 square feet is proposed along the end of the San Rafael Canal and Francisco Boulevard, including a 150-berth marina and a 100-room hotel.

Proposed near Albert Park behind the auto center and garden offices are about 400 housing units.

BAYFRONT AND OPEN SPACE

The plan suggests creation of up to 100,000 square feet of commercial and recreational facilities on the San Rafael bayfront near the mouth of the canal, including a hotel and 400-berth marina with parking for 700 cars. The plan provides for a 100-acre linear bayfront park.

Also proposed are up to 2,000 residential units backing the bayfront park, and up to 200 units north of the canal mouth.

The plan calls for creation of an extensive pedestrian system downtown and along the canal, embracing pedestrian-oriented streets and miniparks and plazas to link residential, commercial and recreation areas.

TRANSPORTATION

The plan urges provision of "improved accessibility to existing and new downtown facilities by creating a new east-west couplet using Second Street and a new parallel right-of-way to its south."

Also proposed is "relieving downtown of through traffic impact and improving accessibility to the West Francisco Boulevard area by providing a new one-way couplet linking the downtown with Highways 101 and 17 at Bellam Boulevard."

The plan also proposes provision of 'maximum opportunities for public transit."

PLAN TWO

Proposed are up to 50,000 square feet of additional retail facilities, including parking for 200 cars, and up to 50,000 square feet of new office space, with parking for about 150 cars.

Up to 200 new housing units also are proposed.

FRANCISCO BOULEVARDS

The plan locates a regional shopping center, including three major department stores and parking for up to 5,000 cars, in the West Francisco Boulevard area "where it can benefit from high visibility." The complex would require assmebly of a site of more than 50 acres by relocating existing businesses.

Also proposed are up to 400,000 square feet of new garden offices at the head of the shopping complex and framed roughly by Lindaro and Third streets. The proposal includes parking for up to 1,200 cars.

In addition, development of an auto center of up to 15 dealerships is proposed around a nucleus of existing dealerships on East Francisco Boulevard.

Other development in the Francisco boulevards corridor includes up to 150,000 square feet of mixed commercial facilities, a 150-berth marina with parking for up to 600 cars and a 15-acre boat sales center near Harbor Street.

Some 200 acres of industrial sites along the corridor near Andersen Drive on the west and Kerner Boulevard on the east, are also proposed.

BAYFRONT AND OPEN SPACE

The plan proposes a 50-acre linear bayfront park that provides "continous public access' with pedestrian and bicycle paths linking it to the San Rafael Canal and downtown areas. Another park and 200-berth marina are envisioned near the mouth of the canal.

Housing totaling up to 1,000 units is proposed south of the canal mouth near Catalina Boulevard and East Canal Street. About 150 more units are planned north of the canal.

Also planned is a pedestrian and minipark system downtown, and development of Highway 101 and 17 in central San Rafael as "urban parkways" with extensive planting and landscaping.

TRANSPORTATION

The sketch plan proposes to "relieve traffic congestion in downtown San Rafael and provide access to the regional shopping center with new thoroughfares in the West Francisco Boulevard area, linking the downtown to Highways 101 and 17 at Bellam Boulevard while bypassing the existing Highway 101 interchange system with downtown."

Also planned is a transit link between the downtown and the regional shopping center, as well as adjacent neighborhoods.

REDEVELOPMENT PROPOSALS — San Rafael Redevelopment Sketch Plan One (above), which proposes widespread development in the city, and Sketch Plan Two (below), which proposes intense development of the Francisco Boulevards corridor, outline two of four redevelopment choices facing city leaders. The proposals were drafted by the San Francisco consulting firms of Rockrise, Odermatt, Mountjoy and Amis, and Keyser Marston Associates. The two firms will be paid about $200,000 for preparing the sketch plans, as well as a specific plan and urban design and implementation plan for the redevelopment of San Rafael.

Midwife Adopts Name For Game

HOUSTON (UPI) — Everybody called him "Mr. Midwife" anyway, so now the former Norman Casserley has made it official and had his name changed to Norman Midwife.

"I'm about the last one left doing this fulltime," Midwife said yesterday, calling himself the only fulltime male midwife.

The 47-year-old bachelor who moved to Houston from Dublin, Ireland, 26 years ago said he has delivered 3,500 babies.

Pilots To Refuse Hazardous Cargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commercial airline pilots will refuse after Feb. 1 to carry most types of hazardous cargo aboard their planes, the Air Line Pilots Association said yesterday.

The pilots decided to take matters into their own hands — acting under their authority as those finally responsible for the safety of the craft they fly — after more than three years of trying unsuccessfully to get federal and industry action to ban dangerous materials.

"We don't have the luxury of waiting any longer for them to act," said Paul Jordan, a Seaboard World Airlines pilot and a member of ALPA's hazardous materials committee.

Under a resolution passed unanimously by ALPA's board of directors last week, pilots of passenger aircraft planes will demand after Feb. 1 that dangerous cargo be removed from their planes before takeoff.

The resolution said ALPA's action was taken in part because "we have witnessed the needless loss of life of three of our members and have seen thousands of air passengers endangered because the nation's system of monitoring hazarous materials is totally out of control."

There are about five million airline flights a year within the United States.

ALPA says its studies show that "the overwhelming majority of U.S. passenger flights also carry shipments of hazardous materials" and that 4.5 million tons of such materials are shipped each year.

This differs from Federal Aviation Administration estimates, based on a check of 130,000 flight manifests, that only 5 per cent of the nation's flights carry dangerous cargo.

But ALPA said manifests do not always show the true nature of the cargo load.

The pilot-imposed ban will include about 1,400 varieties of explosives, acids, gases and other types of cargo classified as hazardous by the Department of Transportation.

Critical shipments of radioactive pharmaceuticals in minimum-risk packages will still be carried "in the interest of the public health," ALPA said, but radioactive products for nonmedical use will be refused.

State Price Controls On Milk To Be Ended

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's agriculture chief indicated yesterday wholesale milk controls would be lifted statewide by the end of the month, just before the Reagan administration leaves office.

C. Brunel Christensen, director of the Department of Food and Agriculture, said the suspension of the 45-year-old milk pricing regulations would have no immediate effect on the price of milk to California consumers.

But he said suspension of controls would most likely force the state to suspend controls governing milk prices at groceries, which should lower the price paid by consumers, at least temporarily.

The state, through the agriculture department, sets minimum milk prices at the producer, wholesale and retail levels. Christensen has the final say on whether such controls can be suspended.

Christensen made the announcement of his intentions to suspend the wholesale price controls during a farewell address to the state board of food and agriculture.

Wholesale price regulations have already been suspended in the San Francisco Bay Area, and in Fresno and Tulare counties. But they remain in effect in the heavily populated Los Angeles-San Diego areas.

Christensen presumably will leave his appointed office when Gov. Ronald Reagan retires next month. His successor would be named by Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr.

The statewide average cost of a half gallon of milk now is 72 cents.

Wholesale controls dictate the minimum price at which a processor can sell his milk to retailers. Earlier, in the Fresno area, the department was forced to lower its minimum retail prices by three cents a half gallon after the wholesale controls were lifted.

"It looks like the wholesale minimum price controls will be suspended by the end of the month statewide," Christensen told UPI.

The department has been holding hearings to decide what to do with wholesale minimum prices.

"We have been reviewing the testimony and there is only a small group who wishes to retain the wholesale minimums," Christensen said.

Two bills introduced in the state Senate would shake up the current milk pricing system. One, by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, would abolish retail price controls and a second, by Sen. David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, would wipe out the entire milk stabilization program.

Navy Begins Hearing The Cream Pie Caper

PORT HUENEME (UPI) — The comedian and the Navy officer took opposing sides yesterday in the cream pie court martial, a clash between the traditions of Mack Sennett and Horatio Hornblower.

Comic Soupy Sales soberly told the court he is an expert on cream pies, having stopped more than 19,000 with his face, and that a pie in the puss is "a harmless joke."

It was no joke to Lt. (j.g.) Timothy Curtin, who was on the receiving end of a chocolate cream pie hurled by one of the men in his Seabee company at morning formation.

Seaman Leon L. Louie, 19, of Fresno, was brought before the court martial yesterday on a charge of assault and battery on his commanding officer, a serious offense that could get him six months in the brig and a bad conduct discharge. Final arguments were expected today.

Sales, who said that "in all due modesty" he is the cream pie champion of the world, testified for the defense that a cream pie in the face is a universally recognized joke.

Curtin, in turn, testified that he is a "by-the-book" officer and does not find slapstick humor very funny — nor, for that matter, he added, did he ever find the professional performances of Soupy Sales very funny.

Sales told the court that he had thrown cream pies in the faces of scores of celebrities, including Frank Sinatra, Burt Lancaster, Jerry Lewis, Bob Hope and Jimmy Durante.

No one ever brought an assault charge against him for doing so, Sales noted.

He emphasized that he had not "come here to ridicule the court. I am a former Navy man and proud of it and am also a good American."

Curtin argued that letting Louie off would be detrimental to the discipline of the unit.

In his defense, Louie said he took pains not to hurt Curtin. Although the pie was frozen when he purchased it, the seabee said, "I left it out all night to thaw so it wouldn't do any physical harm."

Louie's civilian defense attorney said the whole incident was a harmless jest, meant to cheer up the men of the construction battalion, who were plunged into gloom by word they will soon be transferred to Diego Garcia Island, a lonely, remote spot in the Indian Ocean.

Louie was semi-contrite.

Asked whether he was sorry, he said "no," but also that he would not do it again "because of all the trouble it caused."

Use Of Shelter Food Suggested

"This food is needed in the bellies of human beings, not in the bins of forgotten storage sites," said Dr. E. W. Harder, president of the chamber of commerce.

The city council voted to make eight tons of high-carbohudrate candy and high-protein biscuits available, if it receives written verification from the state that the city can do so.

New Postal Rate Hike Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen says the cost of mailing a first class letter could jump another 2 to 3 cents next year to cover an expected $900 million deficit.

"Somebody has to pay for delivering the mail" if Congress won't increase federal subsidies, Klassen told reporters yesterday.

He said it was too early to predict a definite rate increase but he thought the cost of a first class stamp might be 12 or 13 cents in 1975. First class postage rose from 8 cents to 10 cents, and to 13 cents for airmail in March.

Klassen said the semiprivate U.S. Postal Service lost $438 million in fiscal 1974 and might lose twice as much this fiscal year. He said the Postal Service would file for a rate hike next March.

Teen Drug Sweep Called A 'Farce'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The County Board of Supervisors yesterday ordered an investigation of the quick release of more than 150 teen-age drug dealers arrested by officers who posed as high school students, calling the arrest-and-release action "a silly farce."

Parents, school officials and the police department were outraged by the handling of the arrested students, supervisors said. Juvenile officials said they were required by law to turn the teen-agers loose.

They "were back in their schools Wednesday, swaggering around campuses like heroes," said Supervisor James Hayes.

"I had a dozen calls at my home this morning asking 'What kind of a funny farm are you running down there?' In the public mind the whole thing looks like a silly farce," Hayes said. "One minute you pick them up, the next you release them."

The sweep by the "teen squad" continued today and was expected to go on through the weekend. Eleven unusually youthful-looking officers, some of them recruits from the police academy, spent three months posing as students at 24 high schools, attending class full time and mixing in athletics and extracurricular activities to identify drug dealers.

Top police officials complained that the county probation department broke an agreement to keep the students locked up for at least three days to protect the covers of the police "students" who were still on the campuses.

1929 Market Hero Whitney Dead At 86

RICHARD WHITNEY
Served time in Sing Sing

FAR HILLS, N.J. (UPI) — Richard Whitney, a former president of the New York Stock Exchange who was cast as a hero for helping stem the 1929 panic but was sent to jail a decade later for embezzlement, died yesterday at his home here. He was 86.

Mrs. Screven Lorillard, Whitney's daughter, said her father died of natural causes.

Whitney was born in Salem, Mass., Aug. 1, 1888. He graduated from the exclusive Groton prep school and from Harvard in 1911.

During the late 1920s he became principal broker for the investment banking firm of J.P Morgan & Company and was elected vice president of the New York Exchange.

In October, 1929, when the market began to tumble and the president of the Exchange was in Europe, Whitney was named by a group of large member banks to act as president during the crisis.

By boldly buying stocks at above-the-market prices while others were unloading theirs at panic prices, he helped stem the selling tide — although not the oncoming Depression.

Whitney became president of the Exchange in 1930 and served in the post five years. During this time, his own financial situation worsened and he was tried and convicted of embezzling moneys entrusted him by the New York Yacht Club, of which he was treasurer, the stock exchange, and his father-in-law's estate.

The scandal was one of the most sensational in Wall Street history.

Whitney was sentenced to 5 to 10 years in prison. After serving three years and four months in Sing Sing Prison, in Ossining, N.Y., he was paroled.

In later life, prior to his retirement, Whitney operated his own citrus fruit company in Florida and New Jersey and kept a low public profile.

In addition to Mrs. Lorillard, Whitney is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Henry A. Gerry, of Locust Valley, N.Y., and by a stepson, Samuel S. Sands, of Maryland. Funeral services were set for noon tomorrow at St. John on the Mountain Church, Bernardsville, N.J.

Ullman Sees Resignation Of Mills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., heir apparent to the chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee, says he believes the ailing Wilbur Mills will resign as chairman soon.

Mills, D-Ark., who has been chairman of the committee for the past 17 years, was admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital on Tuesday afternoon after complaining of exhaustion.

Yesterday he was reportedly under heavy sedation and not allowed to have visitors or calls.

Ullman, next in line for the chairmanship, said yesterday there would be no move within the Ways and Means Committee, which drafts tax, trade and monetary legislation, to oust Mills.

But Ullman said if Mills does not resign, he expects the Democratic Steering Committee to nominate someone else for the chairmanship. The steering committee nominates all committee chairmen.

On Wednesday, House Speaker Carl Albert said it would be a "pretty accurate statement" to say Mills would no longer head Ways and Means. Albert added his longtime House colleague and friend was "in my opinion, a sick man."

Ullman said Albert's comments on the chairmanship were made "with some authority" and leave little doubt Mills' days in the position are numbered.

Mills, 65, flew to Boston last weekend to appear on stage with stripper Fanne Foxe, the woman who leaped from his car and jumped into the Tidal Basin last October after the vehicle was stopped for speeding.

Terminal Rubble Yields 17th Body

TEHERAN (UPI) — Iranian rescuers pulled the 17th body from the collapsed passenger terminal of Mehrabad International Airport today and said some of those still missing could be alive in the rubble.

"We think four or five bodies remain buried," an airport spokesman said, "and there is a possibility some could be alive."

At least one American was among the dead and another was among the nine persons injured.

A team of 500 police, firemen and Iranian army troops worked all night using ligtt cranes and acetylene torches to cut through the twisted steel and concrete in the search for victims.

They were unable to bring in heavier equipment for fear the terminal's floor might collapse into a basement shopping arcade and toilet complex.

The main terminal roof, straining from the weight of a 24-hour snowfall, collapsed yesterday burying passengers and airport employees at checkin counters and the departure lounge.

Airport officials said the terminal roof may have been weakened last summer when an open garden was covered and turned into additional passenger space.

"The rescue operation is moving slowly and may not be completed until tonight or tomorrow," the spokesman said.

A LITTLE WINTER HORSEPLAY

Unfettered by the cares that make weak humans curse the snow and cold, two horses took a spirited gambol through the woods around their frozen pasture in Marshall, Mich., yesterday. Though there's little greenery for them to nibble on, they're unconcerned because they have thick winter coats and the promise of hay in their stalls. (UPI Telephoto)

Police Expanding Bike Program

Beginning tomorrow, the San Rafael Police Department will expand its current bicycle safety program to include bike inspections and registration.

Youngsters who want to have their vehicles inspected and registered tomorrow can go to Santa Margarita School, 1055 Las Ovejas Avenue, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Officer Ward G. Hayter said police will provide those whose bikes have passed inspection with a free safety flag and a comprehensive bicycle manual.

To register the bikes, officers will record the vehicles' serial numbers and give each a sticker which also will have a number. Older bicycles which do not have serial numbers can be stamped with a number, according to Hayter.

Police will keep a central file of the serial and sticker numbers, he said. The file will contain the bike owner's name, address and phone number, as well as the names and numbers of his or her parents.

If a bicycle rider is injured and has no identification on him, police will be able to notify next of kin and obtain parental permission for treatment, the officer said.

The registration and inspection program will supplement the San Rafael Department's continuing classroom bike program in which officers talk to school children about safety, maintenance and bike operation. Last year 7,500 school age children participated.

The program will be held Saturdays through March, except for the last two Saturdays this month.

All registration and inspection will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at these schools:

Dec. 14, Vallecito and Don Timoteo; Jan. 11, Lucas Valley and Gallinas schools; Jan. 18, Bernard Hoffman and Oakview schools; Jan. 25, San Pedro and Glenwood; Feb. 1, Coleman School; Feb. 8, Sun Valley School; Feb. 15, Davidson, Short and Laurel Primary; Feb. 22, Mary Silveira and Miller Creek; March 1, Bahia Vista School; March 8, St. Raphael's and St. Isabella schools.

The program will not be held if it rains.

Project Canal Party Planned

Project Canal, a community organization of residents of San Rafael's Canal area, will hold a cocktail party Tuesday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the San Rafael Yacht Club for canal dwellers.

Redevelopment plans for San Rafael will be shown, according to Pauline J. Haro, chairman. The party also will honor Robert C. Schoen, former San Rafael Parks and Recreation commissioner, who died last month, Mrs. Haro said.

Cocktails will be no host and free hors d'oeuvres will be served.

Nails Scattered Around Hospital

About 200 one-inch roofing nails were thrown around three driveways at Hill Road Convalescent Hospital yesterday, scene of picketing by striking employees, Novato police reported.

Employees who voted to join the Teamsters Union in October are charging the hospital with unfair labor practices. The hospital is continuing operations with replacements filling in for those on strike.

Theft Suspect Is Arrested

Patrick Webb Johnson, 18, of 1304 Cambridge Street, Novato, was arrested by Novato police early today on suspicion of concealing stolen property.

Police said they stopped Johnson's car at South Novato Boulevard and Crossroads Court at 12:10 a.m. because of a bald tire. In the car they discovered a Master Charge card, stolen in Merritt Hospital in Oakland Nov. 10, and a chess set, valued at $400, which was stolen in San Francisco last night, police said.

Johnson was booked at the Marin County Jail, held in lieu of $1,000 bail and scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

State Tenants Facing Rental Boost

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State employees living in state-owned housing may soon be paying rent in amounts similar to what the general public is charged.

After a four-hour hearing yesterday, the state Board of Control agreed to charge the employees rent similar to rents paid by the public at large. The three-member board decided to adopt the proposal at its next meeting.

The board's current rent policy has allowed State College Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke to live in a house worth an estimated $350,000 while paying $142-a-month rent.

Board Chairman Lawrence Robinson Jr. recommended rents on state-owned housing be based on the fair market rental value of the residence. But the rent could not exceed 20 per cent of the employee's salary.

Robinson's recommendation came after numerous witnesses, including fish culturists, prison guards, park rangers and forest rangers, complained to the board about a proposed rent policy based on the market value of the houses, if they were sold on the open market.

State rents range from $11 a month for one-room cabins at Jedediah Smith Redwoods State Park to Dumke's residence in the exclusive Bel Aire Section of Los Angeles.

Robinson said the difference between the rental value and the sale value of the residences would account for the remote and unique aspects of many of the houses.

Rental value would consider distance from schools and community centers, Robinson said. The sale market value would be determined by the physical value of the residence alone.

The hearing came one day after an auditor general's report charged that the state treasury is losing $1.2 million annually because of low rents charged state tenants.

The report said the rents were determined by the number of rooms, location and housekeeping facilities rather than market or rental value.

Under a proposal such rental determinants would not be used. However, rent reductions would be allowed if a portion of the residence were used for official business or other discomforting circumtances existed.

Petaluma Man Is Arrested After Death Of Cab Driver

The case of the Rohnert Park man found dead in Cotati Wednesday morning took a bizarre twist yesterday with the arrest of a Petaluma resident.

Cotati police arrested Blayne Curtis Blackwood, 20, of 804 Ely Boulevard, in a Santa Rosa Motel.

Although the county coroner yesterday determined that Antone Nino Davi Jr., 53, died of a heart attack, Blackwood was arrested on suspicion of murder.

Coroner's investigator Donald Noriel said that Davi, who lived at 445 Arlan Drive, a Santa Rosa cab driver, had a history of heart problems. The only wound found on his body was a small cut on the back of his head, which Noriel said could have been caused by either a blow or a fall.

Police said that, under state law, a suspect may be accused of murder if it is believed the victim died during the commission of a crime.

Besides the murder charge, Blackwood was held in jail without bail on suspicion of kidnaping, robbery and auto theft.

He was scheduled for arraignment today in Santa Rosa Municipal Court.

The coroner placed Davi's death at between 11:30 p.m. Tuesday and 12:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Soviet Truckers Heavy Drinkers

MOSCOW (UPI) — Half the drivers at a Soviet truck pool — a total of 83 men — lost their licenses last year because of drunken driving, according to a Lithuanian newspaper.

The Dec. 3 edition of Komsomolskaya Pravda of Vilnius said those convicted included the manager of the truck pool.

"The drivers evidently had little difficulty in obtaining the return of their licenses.

"Some persons lost their licenses as many as five times." Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

It said the reason is that there is a serious shortage of drivers, especially at harvest time.

A LAST LEAF OF FALL

The blazing colors and the smells of autumn are still found in the mountains and valleys of northern California. A chill in the morning air and the sound of leaves being raked signal the onset of winter. In the midst of the changing panorama, these young lovers found themselves enjoying a stroll along the Sacramento River in Redding yesterday, but the scene is the same from the Trinity Alps to Burney Falls, Mount Shasta and Mount Lassen.

Selection Of Damage Suit Jury Is Ordered

OAKLAND (AP) — An Alameda County Superior Court judge has ordered jury selection to begin Monday in a $12 million damage suit after defendants were unable to agree on extending the time for beginning the trial involving a 1970 strike at the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

On direction of Judge William P. Hayes, all parties appeared before him yesterday to determine whether they would agree to extend the five-year time limit for starting the trial from Jan. 7 to Feb. 1.

"Some of the counsel could not agree to a continuance and so the matter will have to go to trial Dec. 9," said the judge. "I had had high hopes we could continue the case and select a jury from a new panel, but it could not be worked out."

California Newspapers Inc. has filed suit against a number of unions and individuals seeking damages on allegations that the defendants conspired to interfere with the newspaper's functions by unlawful actions and violence during demonstrations, picketing and secondary boycotts.

The defendants include the International Typographical Union, ITU Local 21, Joint Council of Teamsters No. 7, Teamsters Local 921, San Francisco Labor Council, Marin County Labor Council, Web Pressman's Union Local 4, and a number of union officials and members.

Attorneys for defendants said they had met and a unanimous agreement could not be reached on extending the deadline for starting the trial.

One attorney, who declined to be identified, said a number of individual defendants did not want to waive their right to have their trial delayed beyond the five-year limit.

California law requires that a trial in a civil suit must be started within five years of the date it is filed, and in this case that date is Jan. 7.

The jurors will be selected from a panel in existence for six months and due to expire Dec. 22.

Judge Hayes ordered the jury commissioner to summon a panel of 100 prospective jurors for Monday. The jury selection process, which he indicated might take as long as two or three weeks, will take place at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium, some distance from the county courthouse.

Near Record

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The 123rd and 124th homicides of the year were recorded in San Francisco yesterday, a total which is just one less than the all-time high of 1969. There were 103 in 1973.

Angela Davis: Key In U.S. Politics

By JUNE GOODWIN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — It would be impossible to understand American political thought if one left out Angela Davis.

Yes, she is still around. And it is very important to note what she's doing, not because she individually is that important, as she herself will insist, but because she is indicative of a fire left burning somewhere in the heart of preoccupied, fed-up America.

What is she doing? She's still battling the injustices of the U.S. prison system. You are likely to hear about it again and again, and not only from Angela Davis.

Her autobiography — tracing her rise from a middle-class Birmingham childhood, through Brandeis University, studying philosophy in Europe, teaching at UCLA, and her escalating political activism into the Communist Party — is hot off what Miss Davis would call the bourgeois, capitalist press.

It undoubtedly will be read, if they can get hold of it, by prisoners all across the United States. The impact of it must not be underestimated. It may not be so much like a match thrown into straw as a wind blown on smouldering embers. There's fire there already — black, poor, proud fire.

Angela Davis may not convince you that salvation lies with the Communist Party, and she may be blatantly naive about the operation of the Party in other countries (ignoring equally awful, or worse, injustices there), but she does know the dark corners of America, especially, those in Black America.

She's a "political animal" out to the last split-end of her magnificent afro (her natural hairdo) of which she is justifiably proud. What comes across in her book is that her politics have grown out of a deepening concern about class and racial injustices. Partly to assuage guilt over her own relatively privileged upbringing and the fact that she missed out on so much of the earlier civil rights movement, she became active with a vengeance in California in the late '60's.

That led to her involvement with the Soledad Brothers who were fighting sentences in Soledad Prison in Marin County. Then on August 7, 1970, Jonathan Jackson, aged 17 and brother of Soledad prisoner George Jackson, was in the middle of a shootout in the Marin County courthouse. Afterward the FBI wanted Angela Davis for her alleged part in the incident. She tells how she escaped and fled across country, how she was captured and imprisoned 16 months until her trial, one of the most important political trials of the last decade.

It's all there. Except . . . it's not all there at all. Angela Davis, the woman, seems to be missing. That begins to be bothersome somewhere in the middle of the book throughout interminable pages about political organizing, with their large doses of political cliches. But by the end of the book it doesn't matter so much. Here is a woman who is either intensely private or who really is almost totally political in thinking.

She has said she wrote this autobiography hoping it might help others who are fighting the same fight. It quite likely will.

Angela Davis and her friends, it is obvious from the book, have become sophisticates at political organization, in learning how to channel the masses, she would say. (How one hates to be called part of "the masses.") Today, she says, "we have consolidated the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression, which has chapters in twenty-one states. Our membership consists of Black, Chicano, Puerto Rican, Asian, Indian and white people."

She is now an expert, and people can always learn from experts. But it is why she acts as she does that matters most.

"In Jon's (Jonathan Jackson) 17 years he had seen more brutality than most people can expect to see in a lifetime. From the time he was seven, he had been separated from his older brother George by prison bars and hostile guards. And I had once stupidly asked him why he smiled so seldom."

A Steep Decline In Housing Starts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — New housing starts in California during the first 10 months of this year were off 38 per cent from a year ago, Bank of America reported yesterday.

The bank said the sharpest drop was in apartment construction, down 50 per cent from the same period in 1973. The bank's economists forecast total actual housing starts in the state this year at 130,000 units, compared with 205,000 in 1973.

Novato Rider Named Top Horseman

WINNING PARTNERS — Niki Maxfield of Novato speaks to her quarter horse, Highland Bars, after winning coveted prize from California State Horseman's Association. (Photo by Alfred Arn)

By PAT BALMES

Niki Maxfield was named High Point Western Adult Horseman at the California State Horseman's Association banquet in Anaheim on Nov. 23.

The CSHA engraved silver buckle and trophy go to the rider who wins the most points at his 15 best horse shows of the season.

The Novato horsewoman competed with her quarter-horse, Highland Bars, in approximately 25 shows from March through September; she had time for little else. What were the rewards?

"I think it's an ego trip," the six-foot physical education instructor said. "I like to win, but the most important thing is doing it well. Lots of times in the sports I play, I do not even know the score; it's just fun doing something well," she said.

If Highland Bars works well, she is happy whether she wins or not. Sometimes he misbehaves and, if the horse wins anyway, Miss Maxfield feels embarrassed, she said.

When Miss Maxfield bought her buckskin gelding seven years ago, she moved from San Francisco to Novato so she could keep her horse at home.

She took lessons from Maria Silva of Sebastopol, but initially had no intention of competing. She just wanted to ride in the Novato hills.

Miss Maxfield began competing in Novato shows and, three years ago, started showing in the big time: CSHA point shows. There are plenty of point shows held throughout California, so Miss Maxfield never had to trailer her horse farther than Los Altos Hills or Walnut Creek.

The comradeship among competitors, the pleasant socializing during lunch breaks and the excitement were sometimes mixed with moments of fear, she said.

"Highland Bars is a good hrose, but not always a perfect gentleman. He is a tremendous cow horse; he turns so fast that he dumped me once (when) working a cow." As a result she doesn't show her horse in a working cow horse class, she said with a grin.

Her showing costs are high. Entry fees average $15 a show. A beaver Western hat costs $100, suede chaps $80, boots $65. A silver mounted show saddle sells for around $800. And show horses can be expensive, too; Miss Maxfield said that she has refused $5,000 for Highland Bars.

This was her last year of heavy showing, Miss Maxfield said. She wants more time to ride with Marin's Tamalpais Trail Riders. Winning the TTR's trail test was her greatest satisfaction in competition, she said, because Highland Bars had never even been on a trail before she bought him and was very leery of trail obstacles.

She also wants more time to play volleyball with the Novato Recreation Center's Women's League.

A physical education instructor for 15 years at Marina Junior High School in San Francisco, she also wants to put more time into coaching its gymnastics team and Galileo High School gymnasts who are her former students.

Seated near a bookshelf overflowing with trophies and ribbons at her Indian Valley Road home, she reminisced that her girlhood dream was owning a horse. "You never really lose the dream. I could not afford a horse when I was in high school. My mother raised me alone; we did not have the money."

Now she has her horse right outside the window to delight in, but sometimes she feels that all she does is "feedin' and fixin' " for four horses and an assortment of dogs and cats. She shares the drudgery of "horsekeeping" and her handsome house with Diane Martin, a psychologist with the Novato Unified School District, who recently bought her first horse from Miss Maxfield.

"Indian Valley Road is a fun street to live on," she said. Everybody has horses. People are so neighborly. Money doesn't matter; if you are a nice person and have horses, that is all that matters."

Hot Dogger Fashions Have Caused A Revolution In Ski Wear Colors

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you see a brilliantly clad skier whiz down a slope, leap into space, perform a backwards "mobius Flip" and land on his feet, you are watching a hot dogger, one of the men who revolutionized skiing and ski wear a couple of years ago.

Hot dogging is a free style form of skiing, sometimes called acrobatic skiing, and is performed by rugged athletic types, some of the frustrated racers or former instructors, who decided to do something spectacular to increase the public interest in skiing.

THERE ARE hundreds of maneuvers but one of the better known is the "Wong Banger Roll," named for a skier named Wang Wong, who developed a technique of throwing himself onto his shoulders at full speed and then flopping on over to land on his skis and keep going as if nothing had happened.

Another is called the "worm turn." In this the speedster throws one leg way out, hurls himself into space sideways, in what might have been called an Immelman turn in the World War I days of the Red Baron, and lands again on his skis without losing speed.

And there is the "outrigger," where a skier crouches on one ski while holding the other out like an outrigger. Good ones can change back and forth without losing momentum. Another is the "layback" in which a skier simply lies back and skies withi his body parallel to the ground — swiftly.

THESE ANTICS created a lot of attention, and so did their wearing apparel. First the hot doggers' ski boots were something else — brilliant red, yellow, orange, or bright blue instead of the traditional black. Even their skis took on brilliant coloring.

But it was their clothing that set a new fashion that still dominates ski wear today. Their ski pants and jackets were bright, bright, bright colors. Navy blue might be combined with emerald green. Or they might combine red, or-

Proper Care Will Keep That Christmas Gift Plant Alive

By BETTY FROST

The gift of a living plant, always a Christmas favorite, promises to be as popular as ever this year.

How can the recipient make sure that the plant will still be living long after the late Christmas tinsel has been swept away?

Those who attended the plant sale and program sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Southern Marin at St. Stephens Church in Belvedere Tuesday heard some helpful advice on the care of potted plants. Grace Wright, who operates Grace's Plants from Paradise in Corte Madera, shared some of the methods she has found useful during the years when plants have been first her hobby and now livelihood.

Disclaiming any special background, she has learned by personal research, trial and error to provide her plants with proper light, watering, fertilizer, and pest control.

"REMEMBER THAT a plant is not a machine, and must be treated as a living thing," Mrs. Wright cautioned. In accord with this viewpoint, she takes a natural view of plant well-being.

The believes that rainwater, when it is available, provides the perfect moisture and nutrients. She cautions against overwatering or allowing a plant to sit in water. Before watering, you should test the soil with a finger to see if it feels dusty. Different kinds of plants require different conditions of light. If no instructions came with the plant, look in one of the instruction books dealing with plants, she advised.

Mrs. Wright considers spraying for plant pests an undesirable last resort. She suggests the following home-style remedies: for aphis, wipe the plant with cotton that has been dipped in rubbing alcohol; mealy bugs, wash the plants with a mixture of vinegar and water, then rinse well; scale, (which is common on ferns), scrape off, and repot the fern in a clean pot; for mites, spray plant with light vegetable oil.

IN DEMONSTRATING propagation of a coleus, Mrs. Wright first described the way the plant had grown as "ugly", then, apologizing to the red and green coleus, said, "Never mind, you are attractive in your own way."

The traditional Christmas poinsettia is difficult to hold over for a second year, the expert acknowledged. For immediate care of the bright-flowered plant, she said to keep it moist with water which is room temperature, and supply a fish emulsion fertilizer mixed according to the manufacturer's directions. The plant can stand several hours of full light at this state.

After the poinsettia has finished blooming, it should be put in an area where the light is low, such as a basement, where it can rest for several months. It will dry up, but, with luck, will reveal some new growth. Then the poinsettia can be repotted, given a great deal of sun, and placed outside in good weather.

The cheery Christmas cactus needs lots of light and moisture during the blooming period. After that it should be kept dry and cool in a well ventilated place. At the first sign of new growth, the cactus should be given bright light and plenty of water. Mrs. Wright advised owners of these plants not to turn the pot. The buds will turn towards the source of light, and repositioning the pot will disturb growth.

Blind Teacher To Speak At Marin School

Winifred Downing of San Francisco, a teacher for the Hadley Correspondence School for the Blind, will visit the classrooms at Mary E. Silveira School in San Rafael next Tuesday, discussing her life as a blind person.

On Dec. 20 the Kopachka Dancers of Mill Valley will visit the school, performing in costume the dances of Bavaria, Israel, Russia, Yugoslavia, Norway, Slovakia and Hungary.

The two visits are part of an ongoing program at the school which provides enrichment experiences for students under the auspices of the Dixie School District's Council of Music and Arts.

The council is made up of volunteer parents from the nine elementary schools within the Dixie district. Council representatives compile a list of artists, authors, musicians, drama groups, field trips and resource people who are available to share their talents and experiences with the students.

Visiting artists at the Silveira school so far this year have included Novato artist Celeste Chernak, San Francisco street juggler Ray Jason, Novato weaver and artist Diane Miklos, and the Prince Charles Pipe Band of Marin.

Classes Slated At YWCA

The Marin Young Women's Christian Association is offering brochures detailing a complete listing of classes scheduled to begin Jan. 6 for men, women and children.

Not an old dance, but an exciting NEW carpet
There's a new twist and it's not an old Latin dance. The Bolereau twist is an exciting new carpet from famous Karastan. It's excitement with color—18 to be exact. It's excitement with texture—a crisp twist that looks always neat, yet with a carefree soft movement. But just as enjoyable is the practical performance with a pile packed with rugged heat-set nylon—so the twist really holds—that is so easy to maintain. HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Stutters Haven't Stopped This Fellow From Being A Success

DEAR HELEN:

After reading your article about stuttering, I wanted to tell you my story.

I am a 45-year-old man; have been a stutterer all my life. I was never required to give an oral report in school. At home, my parents often talked for me when they saw I couldn't get it out. Friends wouldn't ask me questions, out of embarrassment. Some people laughed at me as I struggled. It looked like a dull life ahead, but read on.

I'm still a stutterer, but in a sense, proud of it. I have been a postmaster for 21 years, worked in a bank before that, and also served in the Army. I talk to the public daily, take active part in conventions, and public affairs, give oral reports and sometimes even talk to large groups on speech therapy.

Many of the older people have forgotten that I used to stutter so much, and most of the young ones don't even know that I do.

What changed my life was a seven-week course at the University of Minnesota at an outpatient speech clinic for stutterers. I enrolled twice, in 1949 and 1952. Therapists there taught me not how to get rid of stuttering, but how to live with it.

The longest stuttering block is less than a half-second, and all the rest of the hesitations, cover-ups, facial contractions, etc. are done to hide the stuttering. Naturally, these are much worse than stuttering itself. If these secondaries are brought under control, most people won't even notice your speech problem. This takes prayer, practice and patience and isn't accomplished overnight but it can be done!

I feel I'm one of the happiest and luckiest of men, with a great job, fine friends, and even some nice enemies. In plain words, I have much to be thankful for and my stuttering just possibly has helped me achieve many of my goals. Those university courses changed my outlook on life! — DON

DEAR HELEN:

That young man who said he was running slowly from the advances of older women in his office — is he bragging or wishing?

We aren't all Mrs. Robinsons, believe me. Just because we're friendly doesn't mean we're panting after these young bucks, nor does it mean we're sexually starved.

I have been married six times (three times to the same man after divorces). I'm 45, have a 36-24-35 figure and do not chase boys. However, many ask me for dates.

It's popular these days to go with older women. Really, Helen, we don't pursue, we're the ones who are being chased by fellows 15 to 20 years younger than we are. — NOT DEPRIVED

DEAR HELEN:

Recently, you had a column advising young people to beware of certain traits when looking for a spouse. I could add some from painful experience.

To young women contemplating marriage: Stay miles away from a boy whose father is so introverted, he seldom talks and never offers praise or gratitude.

My husband grew up in this atmosphere and is so lacking in self-confidence it is pathetic. He's an emotional cripple from being ignored by a hermit father.

How I wish all schools gave courses in parenthood and that everyone expecting to be a parent would take them. Maybe it would save the next generation from many problems. — STRUGGLING

DEAR STRUGGLING:

You've got a point about parenthood courses, but please don't blame emotional problems entirely on parents. It isn't so much what happened to you in early life as it is how you reacted to these things. Otherwise, explain how two people brought up in exactly the same environment develop entirely different personalities.

Perhaps rational emotive therapy can help your husband. I'd suggest he start by reading Albert Ellis' book, "Humanistic Psychotherapy." — H.

SEW SIMPLE

Make Sure Your Gifts Are Useful

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate

This is the time of year when everyone is pushing the panic button and thinking about those Christmas gifts to make. Time is a premium with all of us. Let's not get overinvolved in useless gifts that take lots of time, become frustrating and somehow never get finished. With the economy the key word today, let's make and give gifts that are usable and easy to make.

FOR HIM: The "him" could be any age. How about a full-length robe, not one of the short lengths that men have worn (and not enjoyed for ages). He'd love the luxury of being warm to the toes as women have for years. Make it of washable fleece, it's so cuddly. Simply take a regular pattern and lengthen it to the proper length.

Another suggestion is a shirt-jacket. This doesn't require the same tailoring that a regular jacket would take, and it fits perfectly into the more relaxed way of today's living. This could be made of corduroy, lightweight wools, printed corduroy, cottons (if you live in warm climates) or whatever. If you want to be super-extravagant, make it out of the new washable ultra suede. But make him something yourself, it's a wonderful way to say "I love you."

For instructions on how to make a quick caftan for men or women for at-home lounging send for "Super Caftan." Mail 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

FOR LITTLE GIRLS: They love long dresses and you can make a simple, long jumper-dress with an empire line bodice with gathered skirt out of printed velveteen or corduroy. She can wear it over blouses or body shirts. I guarantee she'll love it so much, she'll want to wear it 24 hours a day. My 4-year-old grand-daughter wanted to wear hers to bed at night, she loved it so much. Be sure to make it out of washable fabric, then remember to never say "no" when she wants to wear it. This is the pure joy of making or giving a great gift that hits the spot.

FOR LITTLE BOYS: The jump suits out of corduroy or washable fabrics are easy for him to put on and they can go over sweaters or shirts. Sew a monogrammed pocket or an applique, depending on his age. Anything that will personalize it as his very own will be successful.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am one of your devoted fans and learn something every week from your column and your helpful leaflets. I sent for your fabric conversion chart, but somehow, I just don't understand it. Please explain? — MRS. M.K.

DEAR MRS. M.K.:

The fabric conversion chart has been a most useful tool today because of the many widths of fabric we work with. Patterns simply can't tell us how much fabric to purchase for every single width fabric comes in. Here is where your conversion chart comes in handy.

Suppose your fabric is only 36 inches wide. Very few patterns consider this width of fabric today because it is usually only found in fine fabrics from European mills. With your chart, you find the width of fabric called for on the pattern, for example, begin with 45-inch width. Find the correct amount needed, run your finger across to the 36-width and it will be converted for you instantly. If your pattern calls for 45 inches and your fabric is 60 inches, again begin with the 45-inch yardage and run your finger across until you find 60 inches. It's easy once you get used to it.

If you haven't sent for your free Fabric Conversion Chart, please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902., and yours will be sent to you.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am making my daughter's wedding gown and bridesmaids' gowns. The skirts are very full at the hemline. They are cut in complete circles which doesn't make them too bulky and full at the waistline. WhenI placed the pattern on the fabric, I found that the fabric isn't nearly wide enough and I would have to piece the skirts. Wouldn't this look terrible? — MRS. R.E.W.

DEAR MRS. R.E.W.,

This is quite common in long, circular skirts. Unless the fabric is about 72-inches wide, you can't avoid piecing it. You can relax about the seams because the skirt falls in such deep folds that the places where the skirt has an extra seam won't show at all.

I would suggest that when you pin the pattern on, you also piece the extra length before removing the pattern. In this way you can be sure the grainline is the same. It would be more noticeable if you didn't use the same grainline.

If the fabric is very sheer, stitch the seamline twice. The second stitching should be about 1/8th inch from the first. Then cut the excess fabric very close to the second row of stitching. Since most fabrics suitable for wedding and bridesmaids' gowns aren't wider than 50 inches, all circular skirts would actually be pieced.

Toys Said Reflection Of Life

NEW YORK (AP) — The play world of children is a miniature reflection of the real world, says Anson Isaacson, who has been involved in toy designing for the past 30 years.

Thus, as lifestyles and attitudes of adults change, there is a corresponding shift in the area of toys and games, adds the managing partner of the Marvin Glass & Associates design firm.

"EVERYTHING THEY see and hear has a strong effect on children — the television entertainment and news programs they're exposed to, the conversation in the home, what people are wearing. You couldn't sell a doll with the wrong kind of clothing today," Isaacson declares.

"For instance, there's a new doll on the market this year that has outfits and equipment to play at sports activities like tennis, golf, baseball. Girls are getting into sports now and 6-year-olds know this and respond to it."

The trick, the designer points out, is to look ahead, to predict enough in advance to have the toy developed and ready for the market by the time a trend becomes an established fact.

"What we have today is a movement back to hero worship, after the antiestablishment period in the '60s," he goes on. "It's brought back a big revival of Superman, Batman and real-life heroes such as Evel Kniefel."

CURRENT EVENTS have also contributed to the surge of interest in "family games," Isaacson notes. Such factors as the economy and problems of drugs and safety in the street have made parents eager to have their children stay at home.

Though toys have become more sophisticated and have increased greatly in quality with the improvement of plastic molding techniques and advances in manufacturing methods, basically they have not changed, Isaacson says. There are innovations in design, in the marketing concept, but to a great degree all new toys are variations on the old ones.

"As for quote, education, unquote toys, they're a myth, an intellectual snobbishness," he declares. "If a child plays with a toy, amuses himself, fantasizes, manipulates it, he is getting all the education he needs.

"UP TO A CERTAIN age playing with toys is a child's business; it gives him an important part of his experience, he learns to play with other children, and in older age groups he learns discipline by following the rules in playing games. You can't make a game with rules and sell it to very young children."

The area of games is "where boys and girls play together a great deal," but otherwise, Isaacson insists, there are still many toys strictly for girls and many strictly for boys.

"Everybody in the toy business is hunting for that big toy that will appeal to both boys and girls," he says. "But you won't sell many football games for girls or Miss America games for boys.

"I'M CONVINCED boys like a lot of action, gusto and mayhem. Toy soldiers, guns and any war toys meet with great social disfavor, and you're on thin ice with cowboys and Indians. So I hunted around for a theme to satisfy what the kids want and came up with pirates, which are socially acceptable. They provide adventure, costumes, swashbuckling, but don't meet with objections like tanks and guns."

Isaacson, whose firm designs toys that are licensed to manufacturers — investing as much as $100,000 in developing a new toy — says it's "a business like any other creative business. Somebody looks at something and bets on it, acts on what I call an educated kind of hunch.

"I'VE SPENT a lifetime studying what people buy and what children want and I think I know," he adds. "You have to have that kind of arrogance to do what I do — try to get somebody to invest a million dollars in some idea."

Father of two grown children, Isaacson got into the toy field by chance. After receiving a BS degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Wisconsin in 1940, he went to work as a project engineer for a company that later bought a toy firm, and he became chief engineer for the toy products.

KIDS ORGANIZE TOY SALE FOR SCHOOL

Ann McIntyre, Muffy Harding and Tommy MacNichols — with an assist from parent Kiki Harding — price toys for the Homestead Holiday Toy Sale they and their classmates have scheduled as a fund-raiser for their school in Mill Valley. Idea for the sale came from Muffy, 10, who was distressed at the defeat of a school tax increase measure on the November ballot. The Homestead School student council adopted the idea, youngsters donated their toys, and the sale is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday at the James MacNichols home, 343 Montford Avenue, Mill Valley. The prices, said I-J photographer Jim Kean, are well within the budgets of most children.

Hot Doggers Bring About Big Ski Fashion Changes

THIS YEAR there is more of the same, plus some spinoff from the space program which has produced scientific fabrics which are lightweight and warm. The old padded, bulky look is gone — and so is the reverse snobbism of blue jeans and dungarees on the ski slopes.

White Stag, one of the large skiwear manufacturers, reports that in current ski wear strong, bright colors prevail but that clear pastels are returning to the scene. Newest in their line is the two-piece ski suit which zips together at the waist and the bib pant which rises in the front like a pair of farmer's overalls. One was in red with a vertical zipper closing and a matching jacket trimmed in black pile.

HEAD SKI Wear, another of the giants, shows skiwear in a more elegant, subtler end of the color spectrum — but with such bright colors as what it calls Fuchsia Shock and Lift Lime. Parkas feature new down treatments and there is innovation with brilliantly colored piping.

Head has a customized pant for today's high-back buckle boots — the over-the-boot pants of rayon-nylon-Lycra have a metal window insert over the boot buckle. A wool sweater in red had racing stripes in yellow and blue — and the colors were repeated in stripes down the leg.

Some of the Hang Ten jackets featured sausage padding on the shoulder and sleeves. That is rows of padding stitched like a row of sausages. There was a parka in a metallic space-age finish and some after-ski socks with different colored toes.

THE REAL hot dogger colors showed up in some brilliant red, yellow and green ski pants by Roffe. Edelweiss showed a nylon taffeta racing jacket in yellow with bold blue trims and yellow stripes down the blue pants.

Sweaters were incredible in their wide variety of colors and styles and some of the best designs came from John Demetre who won the 1974 Woolknit Design Award. There are cheerful, bright colors in imaginative patterns of stripes and jacquards and combinations of both. Those for hot dogging were designed to give plenty of shoulder and arm movement.

ANOTHER CROP of handsome sweaters came from Frank E. Vener who revived the classic Iceland sweater and matching hats. Some of the colors look like the northern lights and probably were inspired by them.

Ski boots retain their bright hot dogging colors and many are made in a molded urethane shell. A competition ski by Vener was in a two-piece shell, flare back design with a locked hinge. The shell profile was extremely narrow, eliminating an overhanging on the ski.

One of the major breakthroughs in design comes from the Garcia Corp., which has a Burt retractable binding. Bindings usually are made so the ski will release itself from the boot in case of a fall, thus preventing broken ankles. This binding has spring loaded steel retractor cables which pull the ski back onto the boot after a sudden outside force releases it.

TEST BUS — Rohr Industries, participating in what has been called the bus boom, has experimented with new design in buses. For instance, they are trying air conditioning in the back, eliminating the rear window, smaller wheels and independent springs. The bus also has a "kneeling" function to take on passengers who can't manage the step up from the street or curb.

Slower Inflation Forecast

By DAVID R. FRANCIS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Many economists are convinced that the U.S. consumer is just about due for a pleasant surprise: a sharp drop in the rate of inflation.

That does not mean prices will actually decline. It's just that they will not go up at the double-digit rate of the last 12 months.

This is the background to the change in emphasis in President Ford's views of the economy expressed at his news conference this week: "It is imperative that we fight both inflation and recession at the same time," he said. It was the first time he had not given inflation top priority in discussing the nation's economy.

Most economists months ago gave at least equal billing to the problem of recession. By now some are definitely giving inflation second spot.

For instance, A Gary Shilling, an economist with White, Weld and Co., talks of the inflation problem being "laid to rest" with the deepening of the recession.

Leif Olsen, chief economist at First National City Bank of New York, sees economic conditions that "can pull the rug out from underneath inflation very quickly."

He reckons consumer prices will be rising at a 5 to 7 per cent annual rate in the first six months of 1975 and 4 to 6 per cent rate in the second half.

Hugh Stokely of Girard Bank, Philadelphia, speculates that the cost of living will flatten out to a 3 per cent rate of increase early in 1975. But his prediction for the whole of 1975 is that consumer prices will be 6.2 per cent above 1974. The consumer price index will slow to a 4.4 per cent increase in 1976, he adds.

In October consumer prices were increasing at a 1.8 per cent annual rate. But that was down from the 13.2 per cent annual rate in September.

Other economists are not so hopeful for prices as the above three.

Nevertheless, they almost unanimously anticipate a reduction in the climb of inflation next year to the 6 to 8 per cent range.

Here's why:

1. The recession, probably the worst and longest of the post-war years, will discourage businessmen from raising prices as much.

Many firms have high inventories that they will be trying to sell in a different market. Some will even shave prices.

At his press conference, President Ford admitted that Americans face some "lumps and bumps" of economic stress. But he insisted the outlook is not exceedingly bleak.

"Our greatest danger today," he said, "is to fall victim to the more exaggerated alarms that are being generated about the underlying health and strength of our economy."

2. Consumers have less real income to spend. They are shopping harder for prices on the items they buy.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, real spendable earnings, that is, weekly after-tax pay adjusted for inflation for the average married worker with three dependents, was down 4.9 per cent, year to year, during October.

3. Some special events that account for a sizeable portion of this year's inflation are declining to influence.

Oil prices are relatively stable. In fact gasoline prices have declined in recent months.

Energy costs amount to a direct 6.4 per cent weight factor in the consumer price index. They also affect other prices.

Though food prices may go up further, some economists believe the sharp increases of the past year have stopped.

There is some evidence for this. Prices farmers receive for agricultural products fell 1.5 per cent during the Oct. 15-Nov. 15 period.

Food accounts for an important 24.81 per cent weight factor in the price index.

Many economists also believe that a key element in this year's inflation was the tendency for businessmen to catch up on prices after the years of price controls. They wanted to enlarge their profit margins.

They may have also feared a reimposition of controls and thus rushed through hikes in list prices. Actual sale prices may have not gone up quite so high, as businessmen compete with various discounts or extra services for orders.

But this bulge in prices, it is believed, is also past.

Buses: New Automotive Boom

By FREDERICK H. GUIDRY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

While automobile production is being throttled down in some areas, bus manufacturing continues at a rapid clip.

General Motors increased its bus production from nine a day to 12 last March, and will stick to the 12-a-day rate next year.

And AM-General, the bus unit of American Motors, cities a rate of "three or four a day."

The business of all three companies has been helped by increasing emphasis on rapid transit in the United States and elsewhere. Patronage of public transportation in the United States was up about 6.5 per cent in the first nine months of 1974, compared with the same period last year.

Industry spokesmen cite two big factors influencing this growth: the gasoline crisis, which featured shortage and allocation in its early stages and led to sharply higher prices; and the lowering of transit fares in several cities, including Los Angeles and Atlanta.

Expansion of service is another contributor to growth. The main factor, though, seems to be replacement of worn-out vehicles. According to one estimate, about one-third of all city buses are more than 15 years old. "Virtually all purchases in the last year, and those on order, are to replace obsolete equipment," said Edward R. Stokel, director of public transportation at General Motors' truck and coach division.

The American Motors bus division, formed in April, 1971, started with an order for 620 buses, since delivered to Washington, D.C. Today AM-General has a backlog of orders for 870 buses valued at $44.9 million. These are destined for Kansas City, Mo.; Tulsa, Okla.; St. Louis; and Scranton, Pa.

Rohr Industries is also participating fully in the bus boom, and is doubling its production capacity. Along with the other busmakers, Rohr is taking part in the development of the Transubs, a Department of Transportation (DOT) project.

Rohr has built four of these experiemental buses. Three are being tested in various cities for several weeks at a time. Rohr kept one of the four for severe destructive testing at its own proving ground.

Some unusual features of the Rohr Transbus include an air-conditioning unit in the back eliminating the rear window, which one official noted "gets dirty and is rarely used anyway."

The experimental bus has smaller wheels, and more of them, than conventional buses. The wheels are independently sprung for a smoother ride.

One of the most eye-catching innovations is the bus's ability to "kneel" to take on passengers who cannot manage the step from the street or curb. (The right front end of the bus can be lowered several inches by the driver.) Wheel-chair riders can board by means of a ramp that slides out from the kneeling bus.

Four Nabbed In Novato Oil Spills

Novato police have arrested a 20-year-old man and cited three juveniles in connection with a series of oil spills on city streets in recent weeks.

Steven John Carney, 20, of 751 Plaza Hermosa, Novato, was arrested Wednesday on suspicion of throwing a substance on a roadway with intent to injure, police reported.

Carney was released on his own recognizance after being booked at Marin County Jail.

Three juveniles, 13, 16, and 17, were arrested and cited and about 10 others are believed implicated, officers said.

The spills of crankcase oil were at various locations and up to 55 gallons in one instance. A report was forwarded to the Coast Guard since some of the spilled oil reached San Francisco Bay, and could result in a federal charge.

Queen's Son III Following Brawl

ELGIN, Scotland (UPI) — Prince Andrew, the 14-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth, was in a hospital today for observation following a brawl with other pupils at Gordonstoun school.

The tussle took place Monday and on Wednesday, the young prince complained of a headache and was brought to the hospital for X-rays and examination.

Gordonstoun prides itself on building self-reliance. Prince Andrew is treated as was his brother, Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, as just another student.

Honesty No Cure, But Center Finds Patient Wants To Know

By PETER BAYLOR

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Generous doses of honesty won't cure cancer, but they are nevertheless an essential part of the patient regimen at the Baltimore Cancer Research Center.

"There's an old wives' tale that patients don't want to know where they stand," says Dr. Peter Wiernik, whose clinic at University of Maryland Hospital has 40 beds and 2,000 outpatients.

"Families take it on themselves to decide Uncle Harry shouldn't be told, but all that means is that the family, and not Uncle Harry, can't take the news."

Wiernik says there are moral and legal, as well as medical, reasons for being honest with patients.

"For one thing, the best treatment for cancer is often investigational and by federal law, doctors must obtain 'informed consent' from their patients," he said. "On top of that, a person sick with cancer should be given time to make any arrangements necessary for his family and his estate."

Honesty has rarely backfired for Wiernik.

"Uncle Harry is usually mad at his family when he finds out later that he has cancer," he said. "Once he knows the score, he's a little happier, a little more at peace.

"When a patient comes here not knowing where he stands, his normal reaction is mortal fear that there's a death sentence hanging over his head and that he's going to be executed next week."

Wiernik stresses that being honest isn't as tough as it used to be. "The progress in cancer treatment in just five years is phenomenal, just phenomenal. For a patient who arrives here shortly after cancer has been diagnosed, the outlook is extremely good. We can work slowly without panic and most cases become outpatients."

While a patient should always be told the truth, Wiernik says, he doesn't always need to get the whole truth all at once.

"Young people, children and adolescents, should be told only as much as they seem able to take. A doctor can gauge their awareness by their questions and the fear they show. The ideal thing is to begin telling the whole truth just as they begin to figure it out for themselves."

When a person is seriously ill and he knows it, Wiernik says, a doctor should emphasize the truth that some people do come out of near fatal bouts with cancer and go on to live.

"That's differrent from denying the disease altogether, and it can be done with considerably more honesty now than five years ago," Wiernik says.

"For terminally ill patients, fear of the unknown is the worst thing. But once they know and can talk about it with other patients and families, it's more peaceful for them.

"We rely tremendously on the relationships that develop among the patients and their families who come here for treatment. They let it all hang out."

DINING OUT AND INNS

Lin Fa Gardens Has New Chef And Some Additions To Menu

Undoubtedly there will always be a controversy over the merits of Cantonese vs. Mandarin cooking.

I'll have to admit not knowing exactly where I stand in such arguments. I have found the difference in some preparations to be only slight. Perhaps my taste buds aren't well enough developed to do better. With others it has been like trying to determine whether apples are better than peaches. I enjoy both without having to make academic comparisons and I believe most diners feel the same way.

It is true the majority of Chinese restaurants here feature the Cantonese style of cooking, which is said to be less given to accentuated seasoning. However, I have known some places serving it that have not been averse to giving the flavor a little extra touch. Both styles are different from western food annd most of us don't eat Chinese dinners so often that our palates become jaded to either Cantonese or Mandarin cooking.

The food at Lin Fa Gardens at Northgate is definitely Cantonese. I daresay the new chef there, Wing Dong, can manage both (he's even skilled in Mexican dishes and once took a prize for his good old American beef stew). I shouldn't be surprised if he could do something with a French dish or two if he set his mind to it. However, he sticks to the Cantonese.

Since Dong came to Lin Fa he has changed the menu quite a bit — all for the better. He's a relation of David and Gail Woo, but they had to work on him to get him to Marin — he had a good job in San Francisco.

Even the family dinners, which are all prescribed for you, have been given an injection and they show nice variety. There are three of them priced $4.25, $5.25 and $6.25 per person. Some of the same dishes are on each one — others are changed. For instance on the $4.25 meal you are served chicken chow mein. On the $5.25 dinner you get chicken almond, and on the $6.25 dinner moo goo gai pin (delicious chicken and mushrooms). and of course on the latter dinner you do get more selections. All are preceded by appetizers.

WING DONG
Talented chef

If there are four, six or eight of you together it's always wise to consider making up your own variations from the a la carte dishes.

Or, if you are traveling solo, you can order a good Cantonese plate at $3.50 with soup, sweet and sour spareribs, prawns, pork fried rice, chicken chow mein, cookies and tea. Dong's American dinners include New York steak, beef kabob, chopped sirloin, broiled lobster, steak and lobster combination and on Fridays and Saturdays prime rib. He also has a daily special.

One of Lin Fa's attractions is its lounge (at its liveliest after 10 p.m.) and the music of Bob Stewart, who has one of the nicest dispositions I have ever found at an organ bar. He's at the Baldwin console Tuesdays through Saturdays.

IT IS ALWAYS satisfying to have one's judgment of food confirmed. I have been receiving nice reports following my write-up on Nino's at Fourth and Lincoln in San Rafael — some verbal and some by mail.

Nino Mareschiello is now adding a couple of Friday night specials to his menu — a complete abalone dinner at $7.50 and a crab cioppino dinner at $6.50.

This place will be closed Dec. 23, 24, 25 and 26, reopening the Friday (Dec. 27) after Christmas. It will be open New Year's Eve and New Year's Day.

SOME NICE entertainment has been scheduled at Holiday Inn in Terra Linda for Sundays, Mondays and Tuesdays — two girls who used to be with the Vermillions, billed as Jeannie Wilson and Margo.

There will be few restaurants open Christmas Day for dinner — but Holiday Inn will. It had an excellent turnout on Thanksgiving. I'm told it will also have a New Year's Eve package of dinner, favors and music for dancing at $25 per person. If you plan to celebrate to the extent that you won't care to try driving home, there will be a room for you at $10 per couple. Make reservations.

AS OF THIS writing, preliminary negotiations for the purchase of Rubini's in Fairfax by Don Bernard and of Don's Executive Lounge in San Rafael by Orlando Velez apparently haven't yet resulted in anything of substance.

And as sometimes happens because certain people only half-read the published reports, assumptions were evidently made by some that one or both of these places had closed. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

Gordon Jones assures us that dinners are still being served at Rubini's, the same staff is working in the dining room, kitchen and bar and Janet Jordan is still playing at the piano bar. The closest thing to a closing was last week when the restaurant (ordinarily closed on Monday and Tuesday) also decided to take off Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving and, of course, Thanksgiving itself, which it never observes as a working day.

Once again — if Rubini's is closed on Christmas Day and again on New Year's Day (it definitely will be open New Year's Eve) don't take this as a sign of sale. There will b e advance notice when a sale is made.

The Executive Lounge is definitely still open and still serving its Tuesday night prime rib special dinner. It will be closed, too, on Christmas Day and New Year's Day — but will have some festivities on New Year's Eve.

"WHY DON'T restaurants clean up their tables as soon as they are vacated?"

I hear this often, also the complaint that dirty dishes and scraps of food left on a neighboring table are objectionable to diners. The criticism is well taken and I don't like to see it either.

Unfortunately, there are times when it can't be helped. However, most restaurants will not seat anyone at a table that has been used until it is cleaned. How fast the cleaning at other tables around you can be done depends on the dinner traffic and the availability of bussing help.

But if a table still stands untidied after 15 minutes the restaurant does deserve a demerit — or a new manager.

Jailed Reporter Cleared Of Any Further Contempt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reporter William Farr, jailed for 46 days on contempt charges in connection with his reporting on the Charles Manson trial, has come another step toward freedom from further imprisonment in the case.

Superior Court Judge Earl C. Broady rules Wednesday that Farr could not be held in further contempt after he refused to answer questions on testimony he gave July 19, 1971, during a hearing on his original contempt charges.

Broady also dismissed perjury charges against Dayne Shinn, a Manson defense lawyer, after ruling that the prosecution could not introduce Farr's 1971 testimony as evidence in the case.

Farr had testified in the 1971 hearing that he received information from two of the six attorneys in the Manson case for stories he wrote about the trial of Manson and his followers in the murders of actress Sharon Tate and several other persons.

All six lawyers denied in court that they had given information to Farr. Shinn and prosecutor Vincent T. Bugliosi were later charged with perjury. Broady dismissed the charges against Bugliosi two months ago after ruling Farr's testimony could not be introduced in his case.

Farr was held in contempt and jailed after refusing to name his sources for his Manson coverage. He was freed after an appeals court ruled his open-ended sentence was not legal. He was then sentenced to five days in jail and a $500 fine, which he has appealed.

Farr appeared briefly on the witness stand Wednesday and declined, on the advice of his lawyer, to answer questions whether he received statements from two of six Manson trial attorneys.

Broady then ruled Farr could not be held in contempt for his silence because he was protected by the California shield law, which protects news reporters from revealing their sources and which has been strengthened since Farr's original jailing in the case.

Farr, who expressed "great relief" at the outcome of the Shinn case, had written the story about the trial for the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. He is now a reporter for the Los Angeles Times.

"The nightmare is at an end," Farr said after the Shinn verdict. "It has been a very long time. It has been four years and two months since I first wrote the story."

Offshore Oil Restrictions Proposed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Expanded oil drilling off the California coast, in both state and federal waters, would come under tight new restrictions under legislation introduced yesterday.

Thirteen freshmen Democrats in the Assembly joined in making the proposal which would permit expanded drilling in the ocean only on approval of the new Energy Resources Commission. Additionally, it would limit drilling as a last alternative to meet energy demands.

Assemblyman Terry Goggin, D-San Bernardino, the chief author of the measure (AB180), told a Capitol news conference his aim was to counter federal plans for opening up 10 million acres of coastal waters for new oil drilling.

"The current random piecemeal and profit-motivated stampede to develop this vital resource by the Department of the Interior and major oil companies must come to an end," said Goggin.

Jury System Fairness Challenged

By CURTIS J. SITOMER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LOS ANGELES — Are many courtroom defendants in the United States being denied fair trials because of a scarcity of blacks, youth, and poor people on juries?

A case headed for the California Supreme Court, and likely to be eventually decided by the U.S. Supreme Court, grapples with the constitutionality of jury selection methods.

But Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Sherman W. Smith ruled in October that this method denies the poor, particularly blacks, Mexican-Americans, and youth, their constitutional right to a trial by a jury representing a cross-section of the community.

Although Judge Smith did not mandate alternative methods, he suggested that prospective jurors could be picked from among licensed drivers, utility customers, welfare recipients, and the jobless, as well as voter registration lists.

He based his ruling on studies that show minorities and poor people are disportionately underrepresented among those called for jury duty.

A statistical analysis completed for Los Angeles courts last year shows that almost 16 per cent of the population here earns less than $5,000 a year. But only 5.4 per cent of those called for jury duty falls into this low economic grouping.

Many sociologists stress that poor persons are less likely to vote than others. Hence, using voter registration lists exclusively to choose jurors is unfair, they allege.

The Superior Court ruling stems from a case involving three poor blacks charged with assault with deadly weapons. Judge Smith's decision was overturned last week by the California Court of Appeal after the trial court judge in the case ordered a new panel for jurors that is representative ethnically and according to age.

The appellate judges said the lower court order creates serious administrative problems and casts uncertainty over the entire jury selection process.

Shopping Hints Given To Help Energy Savers

BERKELEY (UPI) — Don't hesitate to get him that electric saw or her that sewing machine because of the energy crisis, an expert advised Christmas shoppers yesterday.

Power tools and sewing machines keep people busy for hours in their garage or sewing room — and that keeps them from burning up energy in the family's vehicles or having the television on.

Lee Schipper, an information specialist at the University of California's Lawrence Laboratory, called a news conference to publicize the "energy saver's Christmas shopping list."

As well as power tools and sewing machines, it included hand-woven wool sweaters, which not only keep people busy while making them, but keep people from using as much heating fuel to stay warm wearing them.

"Look for gifts that require large amounts of human labor, such as hand-crafted items, or, more indirectly, symphony and opera tickets," Schipper said.

"Don't buy frivolous appliances such as hot lather machines and electric knives," he advised.

Schipper also suggested keeping the gift-wrapping to minimum. Paper is energy-conscious, he said.

Marin Hospitals Planning Major Expansion Projects

By MARY LEYDECKER

If present plans are carried to fruition, two of Marin's general hospitals will have major additions in the next few years and a third will move to a brand-new building on a new site.

All of these plans are in addition to a major expansion at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in the Terra Linda section, which will open late for next year for customers of the prepaid Kaiser plan.

The Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council maintains that Marin is "overbedded," particularly in the area of acute care beds in general hospitals. But where their own facilities are concerned, many Marin hospital officials don't agree.

The plans in the mill include:

1. Ross General Hospital wants to build a new, somewhat larger hospital, on a yet unnamed site along Highway 101 north of Puerto Suello Hill.

2. Marin General Hospital, while not planning additional beds in the near future, would like to build a large addition, mainly for support services.

3. Novato General Hospital, would like to increase its number of beds in the next few years.

Each of the three hospitals is operated differently — Ross General is owned by a large private corporation, Marin General is a district hospital run by an elected board of directors with taxing power and Novato General is owned by a group of doctors and other persons in the community.

While the Marin Hospital District is a public agency and can levy property taxes, the district has never used public money for operating expenses, only for construction and improvements. Operating income is derived primarily from patient fees, as with private hospitals.

Room rates in the three are comparable, although proponents of each hospital point to other hospitals' costs that are more difficult to compare. (Semi-private medical-surgical rooms at Marin and Novato are $92 a day, while they range from $91 to $95 a day at Ross).

Ross General, which is licensed for 193 beds, was purchased about three years ago by Hospital Corporation of America, and now plans to build a new hospital.

"We plan to build a top-drawer hospital at no expense to the community," said the Ross administrator, Raymond C. Webb.

Further, Webb said the new hospital, as envisioned, will include an emergency room, pediatrics and obstetrics care, none of which are available at Ross now.

Webb, a native of Virginia and retired Navy man who came to Marin earlier this year, confidently predicted that when "the public sees the new hospital," it will be a great success because "the public likes nice things."

His corporation, said to be the largest such outfit in the United States, "does not go into losers," Webb said. He added that he does not view emergency rooms as "losers," because they bring in hospital admissions.

The present Ross hospital in Kentfield is "old and inefficient," Webb said, and the 5.8-acre site is inadequate. His corporation, which is based in Nashville, is looking at three sites in the northern San Rafael area and expects to purchase between 10 and 20 acres.

"It is not our philosophy to encroach on another domain," Webb said, referring to Novato General in the northern Marin area.

It is planned, though, that the new hospital, to be located near Highway 101, will compete with Marin General for emergency business. "I would expect ambulance drivers to take patients to the nearest hospital," Webb said.

Webb said, however, that he believes in "corporation rather than competition" among hospitals.

As to how a private hospital can make money, Webb credited good management and instilling pride in employees. "You can't stay behind a desk," he said about his own job.

He also noted that his hospital shares purchasing power with the 63 other hospitals owned by the corporation and that the firm has its own construction company.

Marin General, on the other hand, will have to rely on a bond issue being passed by taxpayers in order to carry out plans the governing board has for expansion.

(Marin, like most district hospitals, has more sophisticated equipment for treating rarer diseases than most private hospitals, accounting in part for its higher expenses).

Marin General is running at a higher occupancy rate than the other two hospitals, and Ray K. Bollinger, the administrator, said many facilities of the hospital are overtaxed now.

He and the board would like to see an addition soon, costing $8.5 million, to provide improvements and enlargements of the emergency room, X-ray, laboratory, and other support services as well as a "surgi-center" for minor surgery.

Whether or not voters in these inflationary times would pass such a bond measure is debatable, Bollinger admitted, but he said he thinks the situation "may become critical if the hospital is not enlarged.

No new beds are planned at the present time, but Bollinger said greatly increased use of the emergency room is making that facility in dire need of expansion.

Novato General, which now has 51 beds, tends to have the lowest occupancy rate of the three hospitals, but its officials view its function as slightly different than Marin or Ross hospitals.

"We are concerned with the Novato service area," said Milton Scott, the hospital administrator.

He and Dr. John C. Siemens, executive secretary of the Novato hospital board (and also one-time administrator at Ross General) questioned the practice of viewing Marin County as one unit when considering hospital needs.

They see Novato General as a neighborhood facility, existing to serve the Northern Marin community, but they pointed out that Comprehensive Health Planning officials usually consider the entire county when alloting hospital bed slots.

It was this desire for a hospital in Northern Marin that brought the hospital into existence in 1961, when local doctors and other citizens invested in the corporation.

The hospital has "not been an income producing venture for the investors," Siemens said, as all the profits have been plowed back into the facility.

But the operation is "sound financially," Scott said.

Although Novato's usage rate is low, Scott and Siemens explained that smaller hospitals tend to run at lower occupancy rates because of less flexibility in placing patients in various types of rooms.

Scott and Siemens showed charts with projected populations which indicated that "by 1978 we will have a theoretical bed need." For this reason, the hospital is asking Comprehensive Health Planning to approve plans for and additional 25 beds by then.

The need for the additional beds is based on a 65 per cent occupancy level as the maximum for Novato General, the men explained.

Whether all of these additional hospital facilities are needed or will be built is unknown.

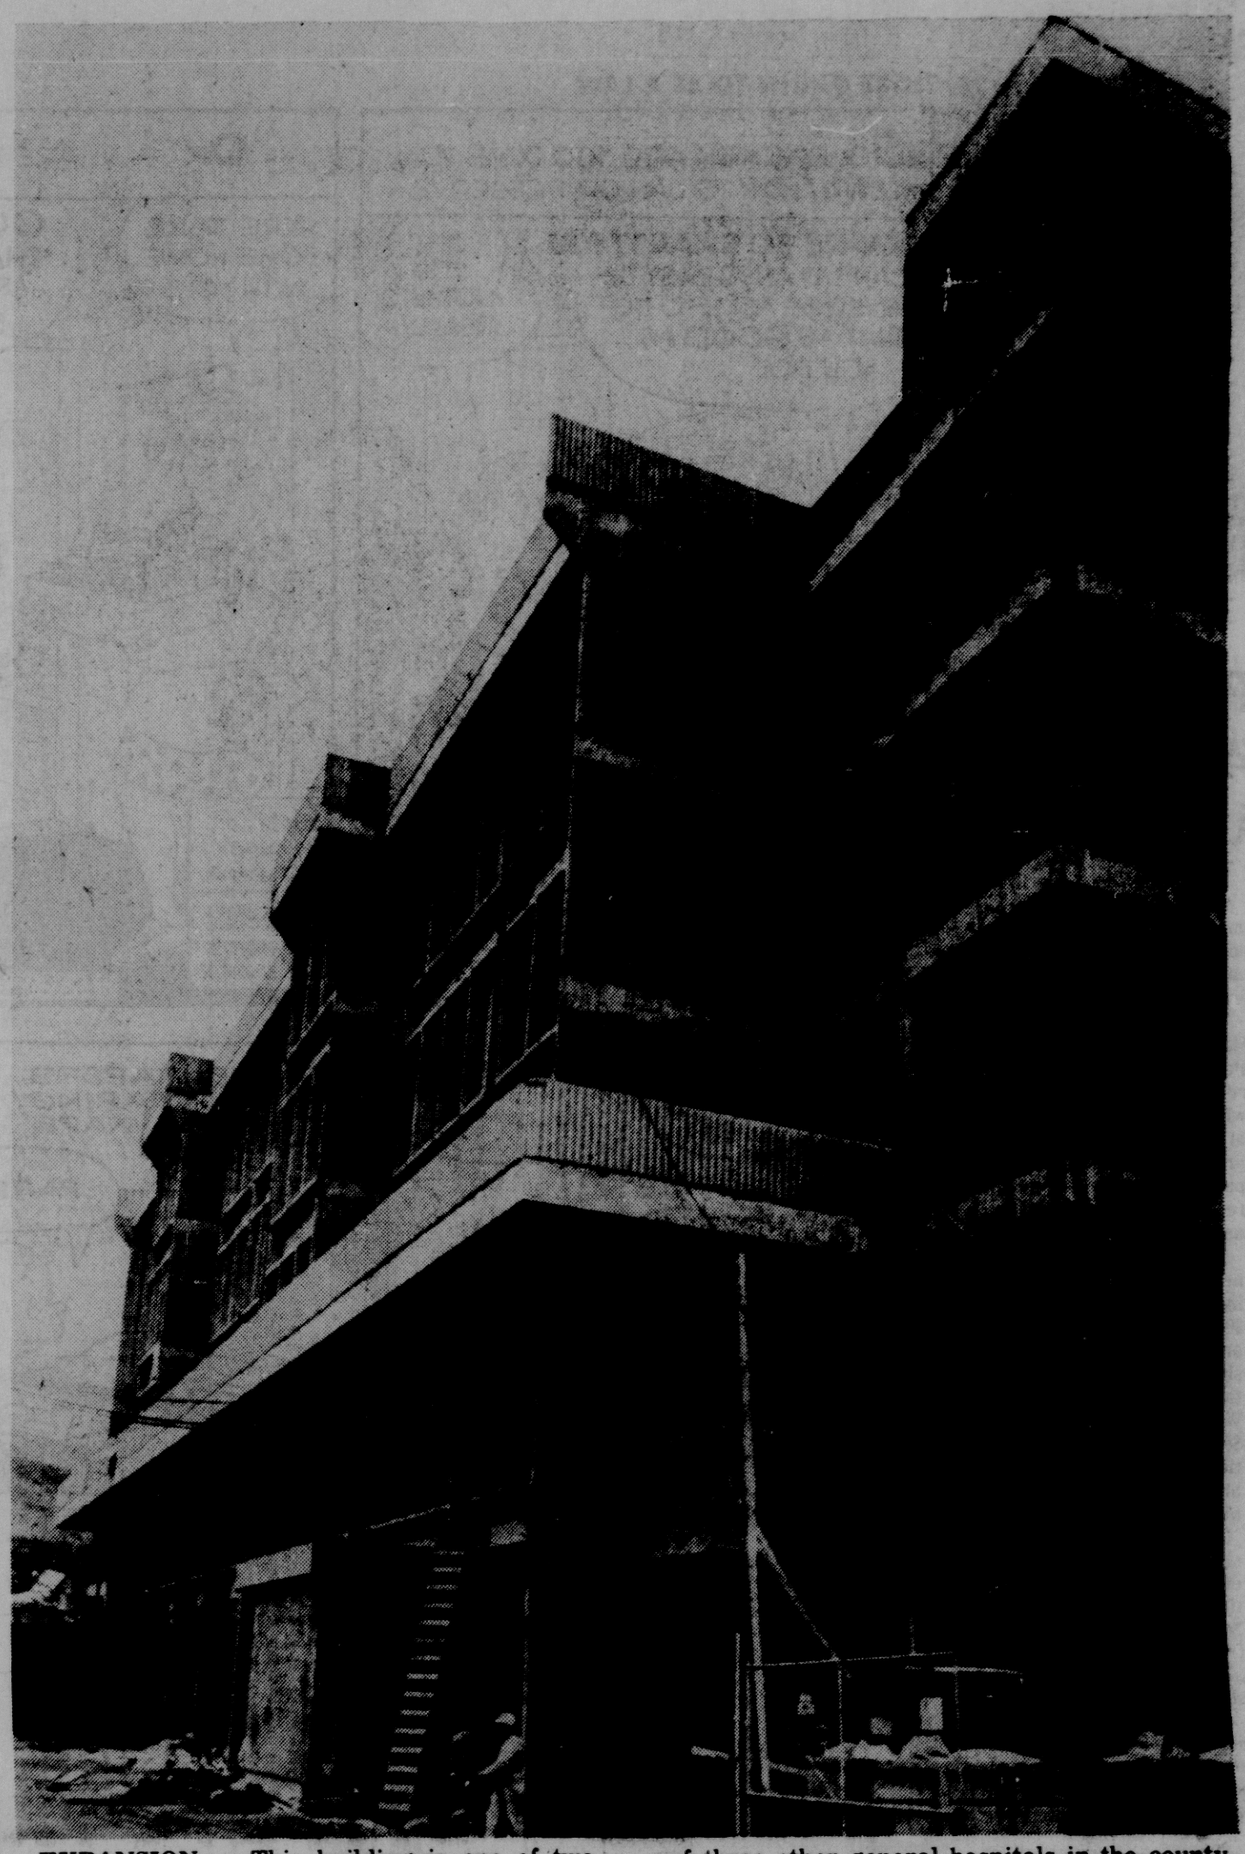
And an additional factor may come into play before the plans go through the necessary governmental mills.

There is agreement among local hospital and medical officials that National Health Insurance is sure to come and soon — the only question is, "In what form?"

The possibility that such insurance may bring a surge of patients to hospitals was raised by Joan Ripple, executive director of Comprehensive Health Planning.

"There may be a whole body of people" that Mrs. Ripple described as the "near poor," who will rush to hospital treatment under national insurance.

At any rate, it seems fairly sure that Marin's hospital picture will change in the next few years.



EXPANSION — This building is one of two five-story structures at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael already well under way. The expansion has counterparts in plans of three other general hospitals in the county — Ross, Marin and Novato general hospitals — which have plans for major projects on their drawing boards.

Drunken Driving Arrests Are Up

During November, 317 arrests for drunkenness were made in Marin, 266 for driving while intoxicated and 51 for being drunk in public, according to statistics reported by the Alcohol Information Committee.

The drunken driving arrests, second highest monthly figure of 1974, bring the year's total to 2,652, higher by 251 than the 1973 total despite less driving this year than last.

April of this year reached the all-time monthly high of 308.

Increased abuse of alcohol by youth is reflected in the 37 November arrests of 18-to-20-year-olds, 27 for drunk driving, 10 for public drunkenness. An under-18 male was also arrested for public drunkenness.

Last month there were 71 arrests of drunk driver in both the 21-to-30 and the 31-to-40 age groups. In the 41-to-50 group, 48 were arrested; in the 51-to-64 group, 42. Seven were over 65. Of the total, 237 were men, 29 women.

Numbers of arrests by enforcement agencies were. Highway Patrol, 145; Sausalito Police Department, 29; San Rafael, 28; Novato, 20; Fairfax and San Anselmo each 10; sheriff's department, 9; Larkspur, 6; Mill Valley, Belvedere and Tiburon each 3.

KENNETH WAGNER

Petaluma 4-Her Wins U.S. Award

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — Kenneth Wagner, 18-year-old 4-H Club member from Petaluma, has been named a national winner in the organization's sheep program.

Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Wagner of 1445 Stony Point Road, is one of six to receive the national honor which was presented this week at the 53rd National 4-H Congress. Besides the all-expense paid trip to the convention, he received a $700 scholarship donated by Wilson & Co., Inc.

For the past eight years Wagner has been raising and breeding Dorset sheep on his family's 30-acre farm where his father and brother also are engaged in sheep raising. Despite the limitation on the size of his stock, Wagner has managed to save $8,000 toward a college education from sale of his animals and from fair and show winnings.

For the past two years he has shown the champion Dorset ewe at the Senior Grand National, and last year at the National Dorset Show in Salem, Ore., he was second. He has also constructed a portable shed for his flock.

Wagner is a senior at Petaluma High School and plans to attend college with a goal of becoming an agricultural teacher.

Fraulein Wants Cows Protected

BONN (UPI) — Gerda Volckens says she just wants to keep her cows healthy.

To do that, she has refused to allow a highway to be built across her land.

While the case grinds through the courts, work on the road has stopped, construction machinery stands rusting in the winter rain and Mrs. Volkens' tourism-minded neighbors are grumbling.

Builders of the highway that is intended to stretch to the north German coast, bringing vacationers with it, said Mrs. Volckens just wants more compensation money.

Mrs. Volckens said she is only worried about her cows.

"Milk cows are very sensitive and need peace and quiet," she said. "Automobiles roaring along a highway next to their pasture would reduce their milk yield by 15 per cent, experts have told me," she said.

Depression Is Too Much Of Nostalgia

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A letter to the editor of the Los Angeles Times, from B. V. Barkley of South Laguna, Calif., published today said in its entirety:

"Don't you think by having another Depression that we are carrying this nostalgia craze too far?"

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Friday, Dec. 6, the 340th day of 1974 with 25 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

American poet Joyce Kilmer was born Dec. 6, 1886.

On this day in history:

In 1917, a total of 1,630 persons died when a Belgian relief ship and a French munitions vessel collided and exploded in the harbor at Halifax, Nova Scotia.

In 1933, Americans crowded into liquor stores, bars and cafes to buy their first legal alcoholic beverages in 13 years.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent a message to Japanese Emperor Hirohito expressing a hope that gathering war clouds would be dispelled. Japan attacked Pearl Harbor the following day.

In 1943, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower became commander-in-chief of "Operation Overlord" — code name for the forthcoming invasion of the European continent, almost totally occupied at that time by the armies of Nazi Germany.

A thought for the day: Franklin Delano Roosevelt said, "We, too, born to freedom and believing in freedom, are willing to maintain freedom."

EAST'S KING

You are West. You lead the three of spades, and dummy's queen is won by East's king. East returns the jack of spades, winning the trick. Then he leads another spade, and South takes the ace.

Declarer leads a diamond, and you can tell that South wants to finesse with one of dummy's low diamonds, allowing East to win the trick. South can win any return and run dummy's diamonds, winning four diamonds, one spade, two hearts and two clubs.

PLAY THE QUEEN

Now that you've spotted South's plan, what can you do about it? Simply put up the queen when South leads the first low diamond.

Declarer cannot let you win the trick, for you would take two more spades. He must win with dummy's king of diamonds.

The prompt play of the queen of diamonds limits declarer to two diamond tricks. South will go down one or two tricks instead of making his contract.

Don't be nervous about playing the queen of diamonds in a situation of this kind. If South has the jack of diamonds, your queen is doomed anyway.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 10 8 7 3 2
♥ - Q 10 7 4
♦ - Q 6 3
♣ - J.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

The hand is worth only one voluntary response, so you should not bid the spades and then find yourself obliged to show the heart support later.

Populists Had Own Newspapers

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Populist movement in America developed its own press in the last decade of the 19th century.

Ayer's American Newspaper Annual in 1896 listed 25 Populist newspapers in Georgia, many of them in small villages that never before had a newspaper. Local merchants often refused to advertise in the papers because of the radical views of their editors.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration satellite photo taken at 8:37 a.m. yesterday shows various types of clouds covering much of the western United States. Only scattered showers are reported from southern Montana, northwestern Washington and northern California. The last storm brought new shows over the southern Sierras and southern California mountains.

Truckee Man Arrested After Yule Tree Theft

TRUCKEE (UPI) — A Truckee man has been arrested as a suspect in the theft of 2,500 Christmas trees from a project which sends trees to U.S. servicemen overseas.

Booked for investigation of grand theft was Ronald Baros, 19, who Nevada County sheriff's deputies said was selling the stolen trees at bargain prices at a lot about 12 miles south of here near Squaw Valley.

Deputies said they recovered 1,600 of the 2,500 stolen trees, which were given to project officials by the U.S. Forest Service.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

After Gall Bladder Removed One Can Eat What Sets Well

People who were on a gall bladder diet before surgery often write to ask when they can eat fried eggs, gravies, onions, cabbage or a luscious cake.

There is no reason why they can't begin as soon as they feel up to par. Since the ailing organ is out, there is no need to omit these foods.

However, I usually tell them not to overdo it on the first day. They should add one item at a time because fats, and greasy and fried foods are not the most digestible. Besides, even people with a normal gall bladder often cannot tolerate them. If they "set well" and cause no discomfort, all signals are "go."

THE GALL bladder is a sucker for infections and a master at forming stones. This combination creates abdominal discomfort so readily that most victims want the troublemaker removed as soon as possible.

The organ's main job is to concentrate and store the bile that is manufactured 24 hours a day by the liver. The ferment (bile) is needed only when the person eats fats and oils. At such times, the sac contracts and bile trickles into the intestine, where it aids in the digestion of these fats and oils.

These functions are severely impaired or even lost when the organ is diseased and clogged with stones. Thus, the surgeon elimintes a source of irritation by removing a by now useless structure.

AFTER SURGERY, what organ takes over the work of the gall bladder? The bile ducts of the liver take over by enlarging to store and process the digestant. These ducts do an excellent job.

Anyone who has had gall bladder surgery knows that there is a period of adjustment. It takes time to regain strength and energy. Increase your activity, but avoid fatigue.

SALT, CORTISONE

H. Y. writes: My doctor, who prescribed cortisone for bouts of bronchial asthma, told me not to eat salt. Why is salt a no-no when a person is taking cortisone?

REPLY

Salt is taboo because cortisone encourages the retention of salt and fluid in the tissues. This leads to edema (puffiness) and a weight gain. The water-logging process is discouraged by limiting the intake of salt.

INDENTED NAVEL

B.P. writes: Instead of protruding, my navel is indented. The area is not painful, but it is very sensitive. What should I do bout this situation?

REPLY

You should see your physician for a diagnosis. If you have a hernia, surgical correction may or may not be necessary, depending on the degree of involvement.

FACELIFT, ACNE

Mrs. C. writes: Would a facelift help acne scars? Planing (dermabrasion) helped a little, but I still have some scars on the cheeks and chin.

REPLY

No, a facelift would not obviate acne scars. In face lifting, the skin is pulled up and back, but the original skin in the chin and cheek remains. The only difference is that after a facelift, it is taut.

HOARSE SINGER

L. F. writes: I'm a member of a glee club and use my voice quite a lot. Occasionally, I develop hoarseness for which I take medicated lozenges. But lately, they have not helped. Would you have any suggestions on how my problem can be cured?

REPLY

You should give your voice a rest for a few months. Hoarseness is a common symptom of overuse of the voice. You also should have your throat examined to determine if there are small nodes on your vocal cords.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

IQ RULING HAILED

Uphill Climb Seen In Black Schooling

By JEFF GREER

A black psychologist from Marin County believes that a recent federal court order curbing white-oriented IQ tests that classified "too many" black children in California as mentally retarded is a major victory in education for minority children.

But California has a long, expensive road ahead to educate the black child for an equal place in society, said Dr. Gerald West of Lucas Valley.

West is a professor at San Francisco State University and a member of the Bay Area Association of Black Psychologists. He teaches testing and counseling at the university.

About 75 per cent of the black children "boxed into" mentally retarded classes in California schools were put there improperly because they couldn't do well in IQ tests that didn't fit their cultural background, West said.

U.S. District Judge Robert F. Peckham issued a ruling Nov. 26, banning use of the IQ tests on black children in any California public schools. Two years ago, Judge Peckham had struck down the tests for San Francisco's black pupils.

The tests' norms are based on such a small section of white youth that "even a white child from Appalachia" would have trouble scoring well, West told the Independent-Journal.

Now that the tests have been struck down, other changes must be made in the schools, West added.

Many districts are closing schools and enlarging class size per teacher because of shrinking enrollment and declining revenues, he said. He urged districts to increase their efforts to serve minority children by keeping open the schools and reducing class sizes so the minority child "can be permitted to develop individual ability."

This and other changes "are going to be expensive," West admitted, and funding must be found elsewhere to offset the already large tax burden on property owners.

Shaking his head, he said he questions whether society will decide education deserves priority over other public goals.

Education, he defined, stresses "transmittal of certain dominant cultural values. It is many times looked upon as a sort of finishing school — to knock off the rough spots so a person can fit smoothly into society. But in reality we find the schools are turning out individuals who are unemployable."

If education were "complete," he said, it would end the disparity which still finds college-educated blacks averaging less income than white high school graduates.

West said it's hard to evaluate the actual result of the abolition of "separate but equal" black education in the 1950s. Integrated education still is "letting the black youth fall between the cracks," he warned.

Better cross-cultural training for teachers is vital, he urged. "Such programs, to my observation, have been very topical, very shallow, very insincere," West said.

He noted that the state education code was amended in July to require any school district with enrollment of more than 25 per cent nonwhites to provide inservice training in cultural awareness.

DR. GERALD WEST

Such training "must not be encounter or sensitivity groups," he warned, but "training in adaption to living problems and the styles of people in different ethnic groups and the personal development of the individual."

West himself was educated in all-black elementary and high schools in St. Louis, Mo., and earned his doctorate in psychology and testing at Purdue University.

He didn't face the problem of biased IQ tests or having to compete with culturally different children on an unequal basis, he said.

"I was never looked at a certain way due to my complexion," he said. "I did the work or not. We had a sense of competition with other individuals" on the basis of ability, not color, he added.

Integration and the increasing pace of history now force the minority child "to compete beyond the narrow confines of the community . . . make it imperative that we learn to get along with each other better than we have," the professor said. "We live in a pluralistic society, and it has to be reflected in the education of all the children. We have to learn how to appreciate each other's cultures."

He said that in California, 75 per cent of the black children in classes for the mentally retarded were put there improperly because classified according to tests based on too small a segment of white culture.

Black students comprise 9 per cent of California elementary and secondary enrollment — but 25 to 30 per cent of the mentally retarded classes, he said. In San Francisco, black children are 27 per cent of the school population but 60 per cent of the mentally retarded students are black.

Being put in a mentally retarded class he said, doesn't give the child special help, he said, but "sort of puts him in a box" where neither parents nor teachers expect the child to accomplish much.

And regardless of how euphemistically the mentally retarded class is labeled, other children know, and the "boxed in" student bears an onus among his age group. "The redbirds know who the bluebirds are," West said.

The psychologist said IQ tests have a basic shortcoming.

"The tests are based on the assumption that the testees have similar experiences, both living and educational and have learned certain things from these experiences.

"The 'intelligence' test says, 'if I can reach into you and sample, I can tell you the size of your intellectual bucket.' It's as ridiculous as saying 'If I can get a teacup and go to the beach I can tell the size of the Pacific Ocean,' " West said.

The upper limits of IQ tests "are so academically oriented that they don't test adaptive ability," he charged. Blacks, through the centuries, have had to possess high adaptive ability to survive, but present IQ tests fail to show this, he noted.

Slanting education on the basis of the IQ tests is "unfair," West said. "It robs the community of manpower and categorizes the child into a way of life."

Permit For Alcoholic Home Asked

The Marin County Alcohol Advisory Council has asked the San Rafael City Council to overturn a city planning commission decision to deny a permit for a recovery home for alcoholics.

The council on Wednesday drafted a letter to the council endorsing the Lodge, a home proposed by the Alcohol Community Foundation for 34 Grove Street. The facility would be used for 25 alcoholics.

On Nov. 12 the San Rafael Planning Commission told the foundation that the proposed home did not fit into the area, which is mainly apartments, and denied it a permit.

Several persons living near the home appeared at the meeting to protest, saying that fire protection and traffic safety would be impaired if the residence were approved.

The alcohol council also decided to circulate petitions supporting the Lodge which will be presented to San Rafael officials.

In other business, the council elected Helen Foster, director of the Family Crisis Center in San Rafael, as its new chairman. Roger Garety, was chosen vice chairman and Gale Albanese was named secretary.

Bicycle Path Link To Open

A key link in Marin's bicycle path system will open tomorrow with the dedication of a new half-mile path over Alto Hill.

Cyclists will be able to pedal between Mill Valley and Corte Madera along an eight-foot wide blacktop path parallel to southbound lanes of Highway 101, separated from traffic by slight elevation and a six-foot chain link fence.

The new bicycle path will link the end of Lomita and Plaza drives in Mill Valley with the southern loop of Meadowsweet Drive in Corte Madera, offering a shorter, easier route. Previously, bikers have had to pedal the steeper, twisting and occasionally perilous Camino Alto between Mill Valley and Corte Madera.

Members of the two cities' councils, the county supervisors and the state department of transportation will hold a ribbon-cutting and dedication ceremony at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at the south end of the new bike path to open the route officially.

The county requested that the Alto Hill bike path be built as a part of the $3.3 million project to widen Highway 101 from Richardson Bay to the Greenbrae interchange. Construction was begun in August and completed last week, according to the state department of transportation. The $44,000 cost of the path will be shared equally by the state and the county.

The Alto Hill bicycle path is the second major link in Marin's bicycle path system opened in the last two months. Under a similar shared-cost agreement between the county and state, a mile-long Pacheco Hill bicycle route opened earlier, connecting frontage roads in Loma Verde with Marinwood. Both paths were built within Highway 101 right-of-way.

Petaluman Arrested In Assault

A Petaluma man has been arrested on suspicion of raping a woman who was alone because her husband was hospitalized.

Perry Wayne Knight, 25, of 102 East Court, was to be arraigned today in Petaluma Municipal Court. (Police said he is also known as Mike Bowerman).

Police arrested him Wednesday after a woman reported that Knight, a family friend, had come to her home to inquire about her husband's condition. The woman, who later told police he had been drinking, then asked him to leave.

Later, police said, he returned, entered through a window, went to her bedroom and assaulted her.

He is in Sonoma County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Marine Admits Slaying Cabbie

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Marine private surrendered himself to police yesterday, saying he had killed a taxi cab driver during a September robbery attempt with a German parade bayonet.

"It's been on my conscience ever since that night," Pfc. Gregory Sandoval was quoted as telling police. "I had to get it off my mind, I had to give myself up."

MUSIC REVIEW

High Schoolers Are Impressive

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

With student musicians (all teen-agers at Tamalpais High School), the Tamalpais Orchestra and the Tamalpais Chamber Players presented last night at the Mill Valley Methodist Church a sophisticated interpretation of Arcangelo Corelli's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, No. 8, "The Christmas Concerto."

This was followed by a solo display of violin virtuosity by David Coelho of Mill Valley, a junior at the school.

The Corelli was handled pensively, attentively, and was received with much applause by about 200 persons in the audience. Both conductor Bob Greenwood — chairman of the school's music department — and the Tamalpais Chamber Players provided a fullness of texture that was impressive.

They started cautiously, almost slipping into Greenwood's tempo, but once in, (from the strings' first solo onward), they played uniformly, sensitively.

The strings were a solid unit, rich and often in full bloom, while the violas starred in the allegro and in the largo pastorale. Here the cellos and basses built a good foundation supporting much of the chamber orchestra.

That the piece was so interpretatively textured is remarkable for so youthful a group of musicians.

Take for instance, the sophistication of phrasing achieved at the end of the second allegro. The transition into the largo pastorale was fantastic: a lift, as if we were being sprung off a diving board and then, there we were, set right in the weightless, the large floating, airy pastorale.

Greenwood pulled themes out from under the orchestra's layering with the grace of a magician, landscaping the adagio with sensitivity and emotion and building the strangely somber opening to the allegro with surprise.

In an effort to reach a more intense vibrato, he tended to press with too much pressure, creating a tinlike or acidulous flavor, but his movements in pace and his conceptual shifts all showed an intelligent musicianship.

In the more serene segments, he lessened this pressure and gained a very relaxed, much warmer, more resonating sound.

If anyone thinks this is an easy work to play, let him try this solo. It is a trip through a violinist's fire and brimstone. Coelho earned the warm, and full standing ovation.

The evening was not without other momentary signs of mastery, the airy, frail flutes (Jon Baumgarten, Patrick Corcoran) in the Wieniawski and the clarinets (Seth Barrish, Bruce Schlobohm) in Charles Ives' "Fugue from Symphony No. 4."

The clarinets gave a particular shine to the harmonic structure in the Ives, but the orchestra's occasional bloopers spread here to weaken the majority of the piece.

Ives' music is written with very separated and elongated notation that requires more tonal consistency than the players could provide at this stage. Occasionally they would meet its demands (the violins in places, the horns in the last few measures) but, for the most part, its difficulty surpassed the musicians' ability.

The program opened with Domenico Cimarosa's "Sinfonia in D Major" arranged by Bernhard Pauler. It was played with the same full and bright sound as the Corelli and Wieniawski.

Further attention might be applied towards a better attack, that issue of coming into a note full power instead of sliding in and to articulation; yet, forgiving the few lapses in technique, the concert was an impressive success.

In the three-quarters round church, a fine location for concerts, it had great presence and intimacy. Although it is not possible, I would like to list each and every musician, for they should all be proud of their achievement.

There will be a choral concert at the Mill Valley Methodist Church on Thursday Dec. 19, at 8:30 p.m.; and a band concert on Thursday January 23 at 8:00 p.m.

Ervin Not Happy With Arms Pact

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Sen. Sam Ervin, Jr., D-N.C., indicated yesterday he thought the recent arms limitation agreement President Ford reached with Soviet leaders was ineffective.

He compared it to a hypothetical agreementin which "I'm to have cap pistols and air rifles and you are to have rifles and a cannon."

"We have the same number of delivery systems as the Russians and yet they have four times as much destructive weapons systems as we have," Ervin told a press conference.

He was in Tulsa to speak to the Oklahoma Bar Association's 70th annual meeting.

Wiley Hits Rules For TV Violence

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal Communications Commission Chairman Richard E. Wiley believes it would be "very unwise" for the government to try to regulate violence on children's television programs.

Wiley said Wednesday he and other FCC officials had been meeting with executives of the three major television networks in "good faith negotiations," in response to a call by Congress for the commission to identify specific actions to protect children from violence.

In Atlanta to speak to the State Bar of Georgia, the federal official said if the negotiations don't lead to solutions to the dilemma, "then we have to look at the alternatives as far as government action is concerned.

"I would not like to see a situation where the government is deciding whether you see a particular program or not. In our free country it would be very unwise. I'm trying to find a solution in the private sector."

Wiley said a rating system similar to that of the movie industry has been rejected by broadcasting officials as unworkable because of the number of programs on TV. Another possibility considered was displaying a white dot in the corner of the TV screen, as is done in France, during programs not intended for "family viewing."

"I'm optimistic we can find a solution through intelligent scheduling, appropriate warnings to allow parental guidance and a new commitment by broadcasters to reduce the level and amount of intensity of violence," he said.

Wiley indicated he believed the broadcasting industry has more than enough regulation now and many rules of the FCC have been found to make "no sense at all in terms of the modern states of technology and our regulatory objectives."

The FCC chairman also said the commission will issue a ruling later this month or next month on "cross-ownership" of newspapers and broadcasting stations by the same firm.

Moyers Returning To TV With Foreign Reports Show

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — This weekend Bill Moyers will take off for a week of meetings in connection with "Bill Moyers' Foreign Report," a new public television series on international affairs that will start Jan. 16.

For Moyers, 40, it's back to the weekly grind he left last spring when he folded his Emmy award-winning "Bill Moyers' Journal" after a three-season run on public television to simply rest and think.

But the former White House press secretary says he has no hesitation about returning to the grind, which calls for him to put together 20 one-hour shows to be aired by the Public Broadcasting Service.

"I don't mind it as long as I'm doing something that was different from what I did the last three years," he said. "Television is a consuming medium and if you don't figure out how to constantly beat it, it will dictate to you."

His new attack, he says, calls for a mixture of taped interviews with various world figures, historians, philosophers and journalists and some documentaries about foreign countries such as Japan and Mexico.

And, he adds, he'll try to have four or five shows exhibiting what impressions foreign television newsmen and documentary-makers are giving of the United States to viewers in their own countries.

The weekly series will cost about $975,000, $500,000 of which comes from the German Marshall Fund, a Washington-based, American-run foundation set up in 1972 by the German government with a $10-million grant.

Moyers says the fund is dedicated to the memory of the late Gen. George Marshall and aims at improving international understanding.

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting is kicking in $200,000, and IBM and the Ford Foundation $100,000 each, with another $75,000 coming from the Inter-American Foundation in Washington, D.C.

He said he decided to do the series after talks last summer at his Aspen, Colo., vacation retreat with Hartford Gunn, PBS president, and Benjamin Read, head of the German Marshall Fund.

BILL MOYERS
Another show scheduled

He said he pondered the talks for a few days and came to the conclusion the show would be both a logical extension of his interest in international affairs and his previous work on public television.

Another major reason, he said, was a growing feeling that Americans have become increasingly preoccupied with Watergate and other domestic issues at a time the world has grown "increasingly interdependent and I felt we needed to treat that subject."

United Asks Reduced Rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Air Lines has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to slash its excursion fares 20 to 50 per cent next year to stimulate the sagging pleasure travel market.

The airline proposed a package of "Bicentennial" reduced fares on all routes — except to Hawaii and Florida — from February, 1975 until the end of October.

Under United's plan, fares for excursions lasting a minimum seven days and maximum 30 days would be discounted this way:

20 per cent discount during summer peak season, June 15 to Sept. 15.

50 per cent discount year-round for children, aged two to 12, when accompanied by an adult using the fare.

A Big Football Night In Novato

Everybody loves a winner. If you don't believe it, you should have been at Marin Country Club last night.

The banquet room at that Novato golf course was bulging with Novato High School football players, their parents and fans. There was room for 264 and when that number was reached, Hornet Booster president Ron Reagan had to turn away some of those who didn't have reservations.

They came to honor the school's varsity and junior varsity football teams who between them lost one game all season. The varsity had a record of eight wins, two ties, and no losses. One of those victories was over Hogan of Vallejo in the Top of the Bay Bowl. The jayvee team lost only one of nine games.

They also came to hear 49er quarterback Tom Owen answer some questions put to him by Dave Scofield, public address announcer for the 49er home games.

Owen, who sports shoulder length hair himself, had asked Novato head coach Al Scott, after seeing the length of hair on some of the players, if they had any "hair rule" at Novato High.

NO WAY, said Scott, and told the audience: "It's fine to watch some of these kids put their hair up in a pony tail but I don't want to be standing in front of them when they are hitting people."

The rules were a little stricter for Owen when he was playing high school ball back in Kansas City, Kans. Last night's proceedings had to bring back memories to Owen who won letters in every major sport when he was at Turner High. As a prep senior, he threw for 1,700 yards and 12 touchdowns.

There was another quarterback in the room who surpassed those figures this year. Novato super player Mike Moroski passed for 1,744 yards and threw 16 touchdowns. Most of his passes went to wide receiver Steve Hoog and it was fitting that both Moroski and Hoog won MVP honors last night.

Owen went on to quarterback the University of Wichita and wound up a 13th round draft choice of the 49ers. After Steve Spurrier suffered a shoulder separation and others failed at attempts to win the vacant quarterback job, in went rookie Owen and he's been there ever since.

SPURRIER WAS quoted in newspapers yesterday as saying he felt one of the three 49er quarterbacks — either himself, Norm Snead or Owen — would not be around next year. Spurrier was getting upset because he is healed but playing behind Owen.

"I thought Steve would have a little more poise than to say something like that," Owen said when asked his reaction to Spurrier's quotes. He said last year the team had four quarterbacks so three is not too many and "maybe there's even room for another very young guy." After all, Owen is already 22.

Owen also hinted he might be throwing some long passes Sunday against the Green Bay Packers in Candlestick. Throwing short ones over the skyscraper linebackers of the Packers — 6-foot-5 Fred Carr and 6-7 Ted Hendricks — can sometimes be dangerous and Owen and the 49er staff realize this.

SCOTT MET OWEN earlier this year at the 49er training camp at Goleta and they became friends. That's how he got him as guest speaker last night.

With a player like Moroski on his team and a player like Owen as a friend, you'll have to agree that Scott knows how to pick his quarterbacks.

BIRMINGHAM WINS

World Bowl Is Exciting

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The financially floundering World Football League's first championship game may also have been it last.

But even if the WFL does manage to overcome its numerous problems, it would be hard pressed to improve on its inuagural "World Bowl."

The Birmingham Americans won what could be the WFL's only championship game last night by beating the Florida Blazers 22-21 in a game that went right down to a missed "action point" run by league rushing champion Tommy Reamon in the closing minutes of play.

But the big story in the infant WFL is not so much which team won its championship but whether the league will survive.

League President Chris Hemmeter said yesterday that while he is "confident" that it will, "unless we can resolve our financial problems by February or March, folding the league will be one of our options."

Just to show how bad things have gotten, sheriff's deputies confiscated the champion Americans' uniforms immediately after the game because a Birmingham sporting goods firm alleges in a suit that they were never paid for.

The champions haven't been paid in more than a month and the runnerup Blazers have had ony one paycheck in more than three months.

It was hoped that the World Bowl would help. But many in the crowd of 32,376 at 70,000-seat Legion Field were in the $3 seats and there likely won't be a lot left for the players after tax liens and game expenses are taken care of. The first three quarters of last night's game were pretty dull as the Americans forged into a 22- 0 lead. But the Blazers livened things up in the final quarter when they erupted for three touchdowns — two on long passes by Bob Davis and the third, with 4:14 left to play, a 76-yard punt return by rookie Rod Foster.

The difference was the action point, which is unique in the WFL where touchdowns count seven points and the extra point cannot be kicked. Only one action point was made in the World Bowl. That was by the Americans' backup quarterback Matthew Reed, who scored on an option sweep late in the second period.

Birmingham's regular quarterback, George Mira, who spent a lot of years on the bench of the San Francisco 49ers, set up the Americans first touchdown with a pair of 17-yard passes and threw a 26-yard pass for their third.

"Things have been hectic with all the problems we've been having," said Birmingham linebacker Ross Brupbacher. "But if they announce tomorrow that the World Football League has folded, they still couldn't take away our championship."

Hemmeter, at a news conference prior to the game, said the WFL would have to be completely revamped to survive.

He said it must have owners who are financially sound, "people who are prepared to survive over the long haul and not just out to make a quick buck."

What O'Malley's Master Plan Is To Save Baseball

Establish Third League; Purchase A's, Orioles

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — If the city fathers of Seattle, Toronto, New Orleans and Washington finally deliver major league baseball franchises to the local folks back home, they can thank a man who isn't even here at the winter baseball meetings — Gary Davidson.

For it was Davidson, the ubiquitious founder of the fledgling, floundering but still very much existing American Basketball Association, World Hockey Association and World Football League who undoubtedly spawned Walter O'Malley's master plan to save baseball from the same dollar war that is eroding pro football, hockey and basketball.

O'Malley, the 67-year-old board chairman of the Los Angeles Dodgers, sensing an energetic entrepreneur like Davidson grasping on yet another new league idea — this one complete with domed stadia in at least two cities — offered a proposal that rocked the baseball establishment into taking a definitive course regarding expansion and the existing headaches in the Baltimore and San Francisco Bay areas.

According to the O'Malley proposal the major league club owners have only two ways to turn to avoid the intrusion of a "World Baseball League."

The first would be for the major leagues to buy the attendance-plagued Baltimore Orioles and Oakland A's franchises, shift them to Washington and Seattle, respectively, and sell them to local ownerships.

As an alternative, the second O'Malley "grand plan" called for a third major league comprised of teams from New Orleans and Seattle (with their Domes), Buffalo, Denver, Toronto and Washington — which would compete on an equal parity for playoff and world series play after an initial four or five year "growing up" period.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, while attempting to neatly placate the eager city fathers from Seattle, Toronto and the host city all bidding hard here for immediate major league status, intimated the O'Malley plans have spurred the usually staid baseball owners into serious talks concerning expansion and the problems in Baltimore and the Bay Area.

The fact that both the American and National Leagues have unprecedently agreed to work jointly on the matter must be considered a positive sign for the future franchise hopefuls.

At least one major league team found some time to deal with the present amid all the future expansion and franchise-shifting talk. That was the Texas Rangers who reeled off a pair of player deals, the most significant bringing 34-year-old Willie Davis, a $110,000 peryear centerfielder, from Montreal for 23-year-old infield prospect Pete MacKanin and right-hander Don Stanhouse.

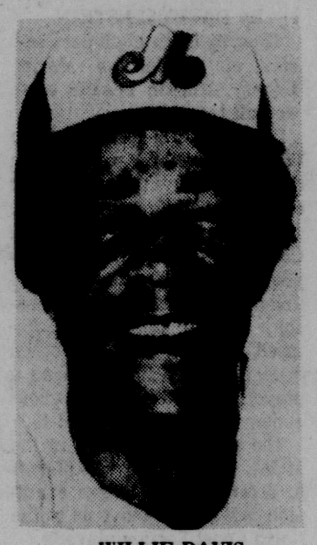
Meanwhile, major League club owners concluded the formal part of their winter meetings today by unanimously adopting a second inter-league trading period and confirming the continued use of the designated hitter in the American League.



WILLIE DAVIS
$110,000 player

The new inter-league trading period, which will be in affect March 16-31, will provide general managers with the opportunity of dealing with all 24 teams after evaluating their rookie prospects and winter acquisitions in spring training.

American League president Lee MacPhail, acknowledging a still apparent lack of enthusiasm from National League officials, reiterated the AL experimental designated hitter rule would continue "indefinitely."

"We have asked the National League to consider the use of the DH in All-Star games played in American League cities," MacPhail said. "They have assured us that they will consider the proposal and get back to us before next year's game in Milwaukee."

Chub Feeney, the National League president, smiled agreement but said, "I have noticed no sentiment for the institution of the DH in the National League."

In other business, the owners confirmed the 1975 winter meetings for Hollywood, Fla., and looked favorably on Anaheim, Calif. as the 1976 site.

The Montreal Expos, one of the most active traders at the winter baseball meetings, engineered their third deal of the week today by sending veteran outfielder-first baseman Ron Fairly to the St. Louis Cardinals for rookie first baseman Ed Kurpiel and infielder Rudy Kinard, another rookie.

Reports have the Kansas City Royals offering centerfielder Amos Otis around for some front line pitching and those ever busy Orioles talking up a three-way deal with the Twins and Giants that would send designated hitter Tony Oliva from Minnesota to Baltimore, pitchers Don Hood and Wayne Garland from Baltimore to San Francisco, and outfielder Gary Thomasson and third baseman Ed Goodson crossing over from San Francisco to Minnesota.

30 FOR MAHONEY

Marin Catholic Defeats Hogan

Mike Mahoney blew the basketball game open in the first period and then locked it up in the final minute last night as Marin Catholic High School defeated Hogan of Vallejo, 72-68, in the opening round of the Northern California Classic at Marin Catholic.

Mahoney, a 6-foot-3 senior forward, hit 14 of 20 shots from the floor and finished with 30 points to give the Wildcats a second-round, winners' bracket game tonight at 8 o'clock against Lowell of San Francisco. The Indians blasted Arcata, 83-59 in last night's other game behind 32 points by All-City forward Eric Gilberg.

In first-round action Wednesday, Lincoln of San Francisco defeated Drake, 80-68 and Vintage of Napa downed San Rafael, 66-63. Lincoln meets Vintage tonight at 7, following losers' bracket games between Arcata and Hogan at 4 and San Rafael and Drake at 5:30.

Marin Catholic led Hogan from start to finish, but had to hang on to win. The Wildcats led by as much as 13 points in the final period, but the Spartans reeled off 10 straight to close the gap to three with a minute and one-half left.

Mahoney exploded for 12 points in the first quarter, and ended the half with 18. He got into foul trouble later but came back to score five points in the final minute of the game to insure the victory.

Together, the Wildcats shot 58 per cent from the floor, which offset their tendency toward fouling (The Spartans made 20 of 24 free throws) and their loss in rebounding 42-22. Center Mike Johnson followed Mahoney with 12 points, eight in the second quarter, while Dave Donati had 10.

Eric Ecklund, a 5-10 guard, was precise on a variety of shots and led Hogan with 23 points, including eight in the final quarter.

The Lowell victory was all Gilberg. He canned 11 of 21 field goal attempts, and made all 10 free throw tries. In addition, he paced the Indians with 10 rebounds.

Suns Learn Great Composure Lesson

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix coach John MacLeod calls the Suns' 108-106 double overtime victory over the Golden State Warriors of the National Basketball Association a great lesson.

"We needed a win, said MacLeod of the Thursday night contest. "This is one of the few close ones we've won.

"We kept our composure at the end. It's a great lesson for us and we hope we can go on and win more of the close ones," he said.

Golden State coach Al Attles was disappointed in his team's meager 13 points in the fourth quarter and went behind closed doors with his team for more than a half hour after the game.

Dick Van Arsdale hit eight points in the final period of regular play to help tie the score for Phoenix. The Suns were down 81-71 at the end of the third quarter.

Both teams made six points in the first overtime period which ended 102-102.

The Warriors, who still lead the Pacific division by four games, return home to host runnerup Seattle tomorrow night.

Another Honor For Bartkowski

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Wood, Southern California's brilliant linebacker, was named to the Associated Press All-America college football team today for the third year in a row, while the Trojans, Oklahoma and Ohio State each had two players on the select squad.

The other repeaters were linebacker Rod Shoate of Oklahoma and defensive end Randy White of Maryland, winner of the Outland Trophy as the best lineman in the country. Shoate and White were named to the All-America team for the second time.

Wood was joined on the elite 1974 team by his Southern Cal teammate, running back Anthony Davis. The other representative from top-ranked Oklahoma is running back Joe Washington.

The third running back is Archie Griffin, Ohio State's Heisman Trophy winner. The other Ohio State player is offensive guard Steve Myers, who began the season as a center but switched positions when a broken hand made it impossible for him to snap the ball.

The All-American quarterback is Steve Bartkowski of California, who led the Golden Bears back to prominence and was the national passing leader. Bartkowski completed 182 of 325 passes for 2,580 yards and 12 touchdowns and was intercepted only seven times.

The receivers are big Dennie Cunningham, a 6-foot-5, 252-pound tight end from Clemson, and split end Pete Demmerle of Notre Dame.

Named to the interior line were tackles Craig Hertwig of Georgia, 6-8, 260, and Al Krevis of Boston College, 6-5, 265; guards Ken Huff of North Carolina, 6-4, 255, and Ohio State's Myers, 6-2, 243, and center Rik Bonness of Nebraska, the midget of the forward wall at 6-4, 221.

In addition to Wood, Shoate and White, the rest of the defensive unit consists of Alabama end Leroy Cook, tackles Doug English of Texas and Mike Hartenstine of Penn State, 275-pound middle guard Louie Kelcher of Southern Methodist, Auburn linebacker Ken Bernich and backs Dave Brown of Michigan, Pat Thomas of Texas A&M and John Provost of Holy Cross, the national leader in both interceptions and punt returns.

ANATOMY OF A HOCKEY BRAWL

Flailing arms filled the air during a series of fights at Boston Garden last night during the second period of a National Hockey League game between Detroit and Boston. Boston's Andre Savard (11) held Detroit's Bryan Watson. Watson was trying to get at Boston's Dave Forbes (left) who was being held in a headlock by Earl Anderson. The fight was apparently a draw, but the visiting Red Wings won the game, 6-4.

PLAY OR QUIT

Portland Rookie Walton Is Considering Future

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — After 17 games in the National Basketball association, three-time All-America and 1973 Amateur Athlete of the Year Award winner Bill Walton is considering calling it quits.

Sam Gilbert, a Los Angeles contractor and financial adviser to the 6-foot-11 rookie center, said yesterday that Walton is frustrated by injuries and conflicting lifestyles.

Walton has missed five straight games with the Portland Trail Blazers because of a bone spur in his left ankle. He missed two games earlier in November because of a dislocated left little finger. Portland officials said Walton was left at home when the Blazers went on their current four-game road trip to the East Coast.

Walton was then given permission to go to Los Angeles to see Dr. Robert Kerlan in Los Angeles about his ankle.

"He (Walton) is considering a lifestyle that pleases him — participating with nature," said Gilbert from Los Angeles. "He is doing some soul searching about pro basketball. It's up to him and I assume there will be a decision by Sunday."

Walton won the Sullivan Award in 1973 as Amateur Athlete of the year and three times was named UPI's Player of the Year during his collegiate career at UCLA. He also led UCLA to a record 88-game collegiate winning streak and two NCAA championships.

Gilbert said that money is not a factor and that Walton is more than delighted with his contract — a five-year pact estimated at $2.1 million. He was the no. 1 pick by Portland in the 1974 college draft.

"He is evaluating his life's goals. We have had lengthy discussions as late as today. The people in Portland have been wonderful to him, the owners have been magnificent, but his injuries have frustrated him beyond belief."

Gilbert said he doesn't know if Walton will call it quits.

"He's been down here over a period of three days to evaluate things in his life — his romance with pro basketball or his disenchantment with it — he'll come to a conclusion in the very near future."

Gilbert, however, said he also advised Walton during their talks that he has to be a "responsible human being" and that he has an obligation to fulfill his contract with Portland.

"I think for a 22-year-old he's very normal," Gilbert said.

A Portland official reached last night said "as far as we know he is not quitting pro basketball. He has a hurt foot."

Portland is 12-12 and in third place in the NBA's Pacific Division. Last year the Blazers were 27-55 and the NBA's worst team.

Walton appeared in 17 of the Blazers' 24 games thus far, averaging 14.8 points.

Benefit Football Slated Tomorrow

The 17 firemen on the Firefighters team will be getting some outside help tomorrow when they take on the Marin All-Stars in the fourth annual Marin County Charity Bowl football game at College of Marin field.

Proceeds of the 1 p.m. game will go to the Marin Aid to Retarded Children.

Rosters of both teams include some former Marin County high school and junior college players and some who have played football at four-year colleges.

Sausalito fireman Leon Howard was a star halfback at Tamalpais and College of Marin and played some football at Chico State. Kentfield fireman John Lando was a rugged linebacker for Marin Catholic.

But player-coach Jim Carroll needed mroe players than he could find in Marin County's fire stations so he got some outside help such as Jim Peters, a quarterback who played at Redwood and then St. Mary's College. He also got George Adams, a running back at St. Mary's who now coaches at Moreau High in Hayward. Jim also got his brother, Pete Carroll, to play flanker and safety. He played at Redwood, College of Marin and University of Pacific and then got a tryout with Hawaii of the World Football League before injuring a shoulder. Pete is now receiver coach at UOP.

There is also linebacker Dave Perron from Novato High and University of California at Davis and tackle Tim Thompson from Marin Catholic and Cal at Davis.

Heading the All-Star roster is Tim Harr, former San Rafael High School all-league halfback.

The game is being sponsored by the Exchange Club of Marin, and College of Marin donated its facilities. Equipment has been provided by San Rafael and Marin Catholic high schools. Concord Cablevision will televise the game and it will be shown on the Televue system (Channel 3) in various parts of Marin County Monday through Thursday nights at 8 o'clock.

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

Little Drake Thinking Big

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Drake High School enters the 1974-75 basketball season with the philosophy that size isn't everything. In fact, it's nothing.

The Pirates won the Marin County Athletic League two years ago with a team full of under-six-footers, and last season, slightly taller, they finished second. This year, coach Pete Hayward hopes to land a playoff spot with a squad whose center stands a lofty 5-foot-10.

The top four finishers in the MCAL round robin will playoff to determine the league champion, which will move on to the North Coast Section playoffs.

Drake won its first two games of the season last week before losing to powerful Lincoln of San Francisco, 80-68, Wednesday.

The tallest player in the starting lineup, 6-1 forward Walt Gillespie, is also the only returning letterman. The rest of the roster is peopled by players who are either up from the junior varsity or didn't play basketball last year.

Gillespie, a junior, teams with 5-9 senior guard Mike Ghiringhelli, up from the J.V.s, and junior center Mel Judson, who didn't play last year, to give the Pirates a well-balanced scoring attack. "Gillespie could be a real star," says Hayward. "He's got good range, he's tough inside and he has a fine touch."

Rebounding will be a problem. But in 5-9 senior Shannon May, Drake has someone who can outjump many taller forwards. "He's a tough little kid," says Hayward. "If we had 12 kids like him, we wouldn't worry.

"We're not going to stop people on the boards," Hayward admits, "and if we don'T play good defense, people are going to score. But we'll hustle, scratch and fight for everything. It's a pretty aggressive bunch of kids, a group that really wants to play.

Others on the roster include senior forward Dale Cope, senior guard Steve Holt, junior forward Larry Brookins, senior center Steve Parsons, junior guard Rick Burris and sophomore forward Pat Fahy. Parsons is the team's largest player at 6-2, 255, and Burris is the smallest at 5-3, 105.

New NFL Owners Are Feeling Like Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh F. Culverhouse feels like a million and he feels like spending $16 million.

He's one of two happy new owners in the National Football League.

Culverhouse, a Florida attorney, was awarded the ownership of the expansion Tampa franchise yesterday and the NFL awarded its expansion Seattle team to a group of owners headed by clothing magnate Lloyd W. Nordstrom.

The cost of each franchise, the league's 27th and 28th, is $16 million and the teams will begin play in 1976.

"I just couldn't be happier," Culverhouse said yesterday from San Juan, P.R., where he was on business. "I'm looking forward to it."

Culverhouse, 55, an attorney in the field of taxation and corporate law with real estate holdings in Florida who operates out of Jacksonville, had made an unsuccessful attempt to buy the Los Angeles Rams a few years ago.

He had no knowledge of his Tampa transaction until Monday when he received a phone call from the NFL asking if he was still interested in the franchise. He went to New York on Tuesday.

"After some discussions they told me they would let me hear in the next few days and that there was a possibility that it would be available," said Culverhouse.

The assignment of the Tampa franchise to Culverhouse was approved by the league after Philadelphia real estate developer Tom McCloskey, who had been given ownership on Oct. 30, bowed out.

Nordstrom, 64, is the board chairman of an eight-state chain of apparel and shoe stores. He will exercise major control of the Seattle franchise, to be primarily a family-owned club.

Nordstrom said that he had spoken to King County Executive John Spellman and he was confident that Seattle's domed stadium, experiencing financial problems among contractors, would be completed in time for the 1976 season.

STABLER HAS CHANGE OF HEART

OAKLAND (UPI) — Ken Stabler, the star Oakland Raider quarterback who has signed a World Football League contract for 1976, now is suing to rescind that pact.

It was revealed here yesterday that Stabler's suit filed in Birmingham asserts that he has received only $50,000 of money promised in 1974 and that some payments have been missed.

The contract calls for Stabler to get $100,000 in 1974 and 1975 before he shifts to the WFL.

Irv Gack, business manager of the Birmingham Americans, said Stabler's payments have been made on time and that Stabler filed the suit because he wants money not due him until 1975.

GRANT TEAFF
Ranked 12th

NEW YORK (UPI) — Grant Teaff, who coached Baylor to its first Southwest Conference championship in 50 years and its first-ever spot in the Cotton Bowl, today was named college football coach of the year by UPI.

The Bears, winners of only 14 games in the previous seven years, finished the regular season with five straight victories, an 8-3 record, and the nation's No. 12 ranking.

"I feel so humble about the successes we have had."

Baylor, which will play Penn State in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day, this year defeated Texas for the first time since 1956, beat Arkansas for the first time since 1966 and enjoyed its first winning record since 1963.

Teaff, who just completed his third season as Baylor coach and was rewarded for the conference title with a new, five-year contract, believes, however, that he did a better coaching job a year ago, when the Bears were 2-9, than he did this season.

This season started off a little like the others of Baylor's recent past, although the Bears were respectably close in dropping their first two games to Oklahoma and Missouri. But aside from a 20-0 loss to Texas A&M, Baylor won the rest of its games, finishing 6-1 in the conference.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Rains A Godsend To Our Wildlife

Those were good rains. They were a godsend to some of the fish and wildlife. Early Tuesday morning I received a call from Ciro Giamona, a good sportsman. He advised me that possibly 500 salmon were at the base of the Giacomini Dam on Papermill Creek at Point Reyes Station.

Even though it hadn't rained much, the lowering of the barometric pressure seems to give these fish a sense of impending rains, so they wanted to go upstream. I talked to Waldo and Rich Giacomini about the problem and it was decided to take the gravel dam out immediately. Then the rains came. By Wednesday noon the fish were scattered throughout their spawning areas all the way up to Taylor State Park. It should be an excellent spawning year. I later checked the anglers along the tidewater open areas at Point Reyes, noting that nine fish were caught, and quite a few lost. Frank Mononi had a field day, getting two steelheads — one 12 pounds and one about seven pounds.

I received a note from one new angler asking, "How does one catch a salmon out at White House Pool?" I've got a ready made answer. While at the pool Tuesday, that old pro Walt Mathews Sr. of Inverness came along. When he gets tired casting a lure, he sits in his car and counts the casts of other anglers. According to Walt, it takes, on a normal day, using a Mepps No. 3 Spinner, an average of 780 casts to get one fish. If there's a rain, or a new run comes in and you happen to be lucky enough to be there, he says you should get a fish each 69th cast or so. So all you have to do is to start counting your casts, when you get close to that magical 780 number, be ready.

Another lady, Marvine Barnes of San Francisco, also fishing there, gave her version of catching salmon. She said she had been fishing for five weeks and got a salmon once a week. She must have it down pat, because she then hooked and landed her sixth fish to keep her average intact. I've seen about 20 fish taken, which is fairly good.

The steelhead are starting to show, too. Frank caught both of his using a No. 3 Mepps. Wednesday, when the waters were slightly muddy I saw one fellow hook and lose two, using fresh roe for bait. Streamer flies are also a top steelhead getter. If it's muddy, nothing beats fresh roe.

SOME GOOD REPORTS of sturgeon being caught. You saw those two monsters in the I-J Tuesday and I've had reports of others, too. One young fellow, John Farnsworth, 11, got an 82-pounder at the pumphouse near China Camp. Louie Zanzi and his wife got a 55-pounder and a 25-pounder at the Richmond Bridge. Dick and Fey Steinhart took a relative from Kansas out and they got nothing, but the lady from Kansas got a 113-pounder. Though the reports sound great, lots of anglers are putting in time and not connecting. It's hard, patient work. Of course catching a sturgeon weighing 70 to 100 pounds or more is an event you will remember for a lifetime. Pick your spot, usually off China Camp near the pumphouse, the S. P. Buoy, or the Richmond Bridge hot spots; use good bait, preferably grass or ghost shrimp on a good hook size 4/0 or 6/0; use 25 or 30 pound test line, about 250 yards of it. Play your fish easy — some sturgeon will run 200 yards — and take your time. It should take you almost an hour to land a big fish. If you get one to the boat in five or 10 minutes, you are going to have a problem either gaffing or netting or roping the fish because he hasn't been played out. If you put a wild one in the boat, you may have further trouble. Easy does it.

YOU'LL NOW HAVE to find the bass with the rains moving most of them up to the Delta. Good reports on most of the Delta sloughs by those fishermen using bullheads.

QUICK NOTES: Pheasant season closes Sunday. About 5,000 trout planted in Bon Tempe; fishing is hot there.

NO STOPPING THOMPSON

North Carolina State All-American David Thompson dropped in two points over Buffalo State's Dave Hoch (53). Thompson scored 57 points last night in Raleigh, N.C. to establish a new Atlantic Coast Conference scoring record in basketball. North Carolina State won easily, 144-88, as Thompson surpassed the 56 scored by South Carolina's John Roche against Furman on Feb. 5, 1971. (UPI Telephoto)

Pacific-8 Basketball Teams Show Some Clout

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Paul Miller's 24 points led Oregon State to its third straight victory with a 73-53 triumph at Hawaii. Miller hit 9-of-13 from the field and all six of his free throws. Jimmie Baker led Hawaii with 14. The teams meet again tonight.

Washington opened with 14 consecutive points and breezed to a 75-62 win over Hayward State. Larry Jackson had 16 for the Huskies while Hayward star Stan Cherry tallied 18.

California, another team with visions of grandeur, finds out if its for real tonight against highly rated Purdue while UCLA hosts Loyola of Chicago, USC greets Oklahoma State and Oregon goes at the Steel Bowl tourney in Pittsburgh.

Probably the coast's best pure shooter, Frank Oleynick of Seattle, hit 24 last night to lead Seattle past Gonzaga 53-50, while St. Mary's fell 77-70 at tough DePaul despite 18 points by Mike Rozenski.

Will Connelly scored 21 to pace San Diego State to a 76-67 win over Idaho State. The losers' 6-11½ center, Steve Hayes, came in with about a 30-point average but was held to 15.

Mahoney Contracting Building Office Center In Bel Marin

Mike Mahoney of Tiburon, who heads Mahoney Contracting, said his new $300,000 building should be completed next March at 7 Commercial Boulevard, next to the Bank of Marin Administrative Center that is under construction. The two-story Mahoney building, designed by Hageman & Ecklund, will have bronze glass, cedar siding and shingle overhang, with a tilt-up concrete warehouse in back. Job foreman is Stan Krautheim of Novato.

Occupying the new building will be Mahoney Contracting and several other tenants, including Ron Glander & Associates of Novato; Fabricated Products Townsend Division, relocating from Northgate Industrial Park; and Gerald Thomas Real Estate of Corte Madera, which will be the leasing agent for the building.

Mahoney has been in the contracting business for six years, four years in the East Bay and the last two years in Marin, first in Sausalito and then in Corte Madera.

ERIK JORGENSEN, an attorney who lives in Sleepy Hollow, has been elected president of Aldersly Inc., Danish retirement home in San Rafael.

Jorgensen has been Aldersly's vice president and legal counsel for the last two years. A partner in the San Francisco law firm of Hersh, Hadfield, Jorgensen & Fried, Jorgensen is also engaged in real estate business. His wife, Jean, is co-chairman of Aldersly's Ladies Auxiliary.

Jorgensen Fry

LORETTA FRY of Novato was named assistant vice president of Western Travelers Life Insurance and Putnam Financial Services Inc., located at 555 Northgate Drive in San Rafael, near Northgate Mall. Both companies are wholly owned subsidiaries of The Putnam Companies Inc. of Boston, a diversified money management organization.

Mrs. Fry joined Putnam Financial in 1969 as a clerical assistant and advanced through supervisory positions to her current post.

ANNUITY MARKETING Corp., just established in Tiburon, specializes in annuities, particularly in applying the new Pension Reform Act that allows any employee (whose employer does not have a retirement plan) to set up a privte pension plan from January, 1975.

President of Annuity Marketing is John F. Bridges of 2343-B Paradise Drive in Tiburon, who moved from Menlo Park to Tiburon in June this year. Before that, he headed the First Investment Annuity Co. in Philadelphia and worked in Prudential's group annuity sales.

Employees who are not covered by a retirement plan are able to deduct $1,500 for retirement from Jan. 1, said Bridges. He noted that the new law also provides tax benefits for the self-employed. Bridges will appear before any organization that wants the new Pension Reform Law explained to its members.

SOUTHLAND CORPORATION, which operates Seven-Eleven food stores, will open a new branch office for area operations in the Park Marin Office Center at 21 Tamal Vista Boulevard in Corte Madera, near the Cinema Theater. The administrative office is expected to open by mid-December.

Alan Martin of Corte Madera will be in charge of the new Southland office. The company's Seven/Eleven stores are open seven days a week, most of them operating 24 hours a day.

JANICE WRIGHT of Mill Valley, a licensed real estate broker, joined the sales force of Cagwin & Hamilton Realtors, Mill Valley's oldest real estate broker, in business 27 years.

Miss Wright, a resident of Mill Valley for 17 years, sold property in the Russian River resort area for more than two years.

Jobless Rate Jolts Mart; Trade Active

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, jolted by a surge in the nation's unemployment rate, moved sharply lower yesterday in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Declines broadly outnumbered advances, 900 to 224, among the 1,589 issues crossing the tape.

Also, trendsetting First National Bank of New York did not change its prime rate from 10 per cent for the second consecutive week. Wall Street has been concerned by the key lending rate banks charge their most creditworthy corporate customers since it reached a 12 per cent high in July.

The decline in stock prices was widespread, particularly in the first hour. Oils and glamors took a beating.

San Quentin Six Can At Last Be Tried

The Marin County district attorney now can start over again on prosecution of the San Quentin Six on murder and conspiracy counts, after an 11-month delay.

Last January, indictments of the six — Fleeta Drumgo, David Johnson, Hugo A. Pinell, Louis N. Talamantez, John Larry Spain and Willie Tate — were thrown out in one of the most remarkable rulings ever handed down in Marin Superior Court.

THE SIX were indicted by the 1971 county grand jury on charges arising from an August, 1971, outbreak at San Quentin Prison in which six men were killed. There were the usual court delays, mostly because of defense motions. And one of those motions resulted in dismissal of the indictment a year and a half after the crimes.

Retired Judge Vernon Stoll of Nevada County, sitting because Marin County Superior Court judges had been disqualified or had disqualified themselves, threw out the charges on the basis that the 1971 grand jury was improperly chosen and "did not represent a cross-section of the community."

Judge Stoll particularly objected that the grand jury did not include what he deemed sufficient blacks, Chicanos, blue-collar workers, and youths.

IN HOLDING the indictment illegal — and thereby in effect absolving the defendants of all charges — Judge Stoll followed a line of argument presented by Charles Garry, one of the defense attorneys.

Garry has been trying for years to get his clients off by attacking the makeup of grand juries (a variation on the old defense practice of trying the policeman instead of the man he arrested). He had never found a judge who would go along with his approach — until Judge Stoll.

Marin County appealed the decision. And this week, the three judges of Division Three, First Appellate District, overtunred Judge Stoll.

IN A RULING written by Presiding Judge Murray Draper, the appellate court held:

"There is neither evidence nor suggestion of purposeful discrimination by any of the five superior court judges who were the selectors of the panel . . . Nor . . . is there any basis for inference of discrimination.

The indictment stands. The San Quentin Six may now be brought to trial — nearly two and one-half years after the crimes of which they are accused.

The six are still in San Quentin serving their terms for earlier crimes. But one of them, Tate, is due for release Dec. 17, so the prosecution will have to move quickly after the long delay.

Garry, of course, says he will appeal to the state Supreme Court — thus hoping to create further delay.

JUSTICE, SOCIETY, and accused persons all are best served by the "speedy and public trial" promised in the Sixth Amendment. But when an attorney and a judge combine to negate that promise, we have such unconscionable delays as in the San Quentin Six case.

Guilt, if it exists, is not lessened by the passage of time. Innocence, if it exists, is ill served by such "defense" delays.

The Smooching Berries

Before mistletoe became the Christmas kissing berry, it was revered for its supernatural powers. People of many cultures observed this plant growing in the crowns of oak and other hardwood trees. It had no roots in the earth and appeared to have fallen from the sky.

It grows wild in Marin and elsewhere, it cannot be cultivated. It is semi-parasitic, depending on the trees for water and minerals but making its own sugar and starch from its own chlorophyll. Perhaps not supernatural, but certainly unusual.

College Trust Funds' Use Questioned In New Audit

By EARL G. WATERS

The manner in which trust funds at tax-supported higher educational institutions are used has again come into the spotlight.

State auditors have found questionable expenditures from such funds at Sacramento State University. They reported money disbursed for such non-educational purposes as entertaining, "refreshments," dinners and lodging. They also challenged payment of $1,022.56 for moving expenses in connection with hiring of the new college president.

In addition to the tax dollars provided, each of the state's colleges and the University of California has established various funds. Into these are channelled donations, bequests and gifts, along with federal grants, student fees, and profits from cafeteria and book store operations and other student activities.

REGARDLESS OF the sources, once the money gets into the coffers it inescapably becomes public funds, presumably subject to the same audits and controls of all other state funds. Over the years, however, numerous instances of loose handling of the funds at various campuses have provoked investigations. The most notable was conducted by the Senate 15 years ago under direction of Sen. George Miller Jr.

At the time it was found that there was a tendency of the college presidents to treat the trusts as "slush" funds for their own personal benefit, as a means to get around the strict accounting which controls tax-appropriated dollars. Committee investigators, checking the records of Humboldt, Chico, Sacramento, Fresno and San Francisco state colleges, found funds had been used for political campaigns as well as "public relations" expenditures of the presidents which were largely of a personal nature.

At fresno, money from a fund intended to provide student loans and scholarships was used to construct a residence for the president. But the most notorious misuse of funds disclosed in the committee report occurred at Humboldt. Its president, Cornelius H. Siemens, was found to have regularly dipped into the trust funds for his own benefit. Money was paid him without vouchers or other supporting documents. One disbursement paid for his country club membership. Another paid for his set of golf clubs. Two cases were found where he had loaned trust funds to employees for realty.

The findings in the most recent audit at Sacramento are minor compared to those in the Miller report. But they indicate that after all these years, the recommendations of that report have still not been taken to heart.

IT IS SURPRISING that nothing has been done to place strict control over the funds, particularly since State College Chancellor Glen S. Dumke was himself a target for criticism in the Miller report. Dumke was at the time president at San Francisco. The report found, "There have been personal benefits to the presidents of Humbolt, San Francisco and Fresno colleges derived from trust money intended for educational and charitable purposes."

Only recently, the University of California diverted trust funds to pay for the maintenance of residences and servants for its president and chancellors for which the legislature had deleted tax money.

The recent audit report further supports the pressing need for full legislative inquiry into the handling and use of such funds and establishment of rigid controls.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON:

U.S. Getting Comeuppance In Latin America

MEXICO CITY — The most soporific old saw in American diplomacy and journalism is that we gringos pay too little attention to what goes on in Latin America.

We used to honor the region with an occasional 21-gun salute, in the form of gunboat maneuvers or a regimental landing exercise to keep our marines in trim, and now and then we would declare a Good Neighbor Policy or an Alliance for Progress. But when it turned out that the Russians were not really going to take it all over, we forgot it.

THIS WEEK and this year are no different. Our president had just made a token gesture by traveling to the border to chat with Mexican President Luis Echeverria, and then put that trip into perspective by flying some 20,000 miles round trip to Tokyo, Seoul and Vladivostok to talk to the people who really count on the scale of American values.

We are in for a comeuppance. We are about to realize the irony of the patronizing regrets we have expressed about our Latin American relations all these years, and to find out that the truth hurts.

While we have been bemused by economic and demographic trends across other continents and oceans, the same problems in our hemisphere have expanded to demand more than the habitual pact and promise.

LATIN AMERICA is not an entity we have to remember to do something about someday in the vague future. For one thing, it is not an entity at all, but a collection of intensely nationalistic countries as different in needs, resources and policies as Albania and Australia. For the next, the United States will operate here henceforth on a schedule determined mainly by the leaders of these independent countries.

The reasons are (1) resources, particularly oil, and (2) people, particularly Mexicans.

Washington's flattery has been focused for well over a year on the various sheiks and petroleum ministers of the Persian Gulf. The impression on the layman is that that area must account for nearly all U.S. oil imports. But in fact Canada and Venezuela have been the biggest suppliers of foreign oil to the United States in recent years, with Nigeria moving up to second in the first months of 1974.

THE REASON the sheiks have had so much attention is that they have given us the most trouble. Now Venezuela, which last year supplied more outside oil than Saudi Arabia and more than twice as much as Iran, has been arbitrarily holding down production as part of its price strategy. And Mexico is on the way to becoming a U.S. oil supplier on a major scale.

Together the countries to our south have the early potential to provide us more oil annually than the Arab nations combined have been supplying. And for every barrel of proven reserves, their attention-getting potential will grow. The fun the Arabs have had making Washington officials dance has been watched enviously from this direction.

AS AMERICANS have been hit by news about the booming population of Bangladesh and the starvation in sub-Sahara Africa, the imbalance between food and population has been increasing quietly in Latin America. Mexico is only the closest of the hemisphere countries whose growth rate will double their populations in little more than 20 years.

The importance of that to the United States is impossible to overstate, yet most Americans are completely ignorant of it. As the Mexican population grows, the currently estimated two or three million immigrants north of the border will increase far out of proportion. They already are a more serious factor in the U.S. economy than any statistician has been able to prove. In less than a decade there will be no dispute about that, and no American will be able to ignore it.

These are hard facts that suddenly are beyond our sole control. They hardened while we were saying polite phrases that translated as, "Don't bother us right now."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Smoker's Right Ends At Other Person's Nose

My letter is in response to that of Mrs. Robert H. Miller (Dec. 3). You are indeed correct! The smoker indeed has rights too! The smoker's right to smoke stops when the smoke reaches the non-smoker's nose. It is only out of consideration for others that the smoker refrain from lighting up in an enclosed public place. Perhaps Barbara Strand is like myself and many others that go to a delicatessen not only to get some good food, but the smell of the good aroma usually found in a deli. In the presence of burning tobacco, it is quite hard to enjoy such aromas. It is just as well people possessing the inconsiderate attitude of Mrs. Miller refrain from shopping in stores posting no smoking signs. It will make the air nicer to breath for all concerned.

In closing, I would like to address Mrs. Miller in saying that if your goal is to die a smoker's death, you need not impose this position on others by forcing them to breath your fumes. I hope that soon you will get smart and quit.

Robins' Appetites Dismay Plant Lover

When we lived in the Midwest, and saw our first robin, we were happy that spring was approaching. Here in Tam Valley, the sight of these fat orange breasted birds is a disaster!

Two days ago a friend of mine was remarking how beautiful our pyracantha (red berries) bush was. Yesterday amid all the chattering noises that robins make, I was dismayed to see them swarming my beautiful plant. It was like a sight out of Hitchcocks "The Birds"! What destruction!

We have another bigger such plant in our patio. So far, they have not found it. Other than covering them with something, are there any readers out there, that has any idea how to discourage these birds?

Birthright Might Have Averted Tragedy

My heart aches for the unfortunate girl who, after giving birth to her baby, left it to die near the Civic Center lagoon. Of course one cannot condone the taking of human life, however young, but it is a pity that the probably unbearable circumstances that brought her to this sad state were not alleviated in time to enable her to cope with her pregnancy and the birth of her child. What a pity that she did not know about Birthright and come to us for help. Perhaps even now we could help her.

Many girls or women who are pregnant have problems ranging from minor to major and we at Birthright are ready and willing to assist them.

Sirica Remains Imperturbable In His Long Quest For Justice

WASHINGTON — From the high bench, Judge John J. Sirica looks down on the courtroom with an imperturbable gaze. It is no secret to him that, if they had their way, the defendants in the dock and their lawyers would hang him from the nearest tree.

That being slightly impractical, counsel for the principal defendants sought at the start of the seemingly interminable Watergate coverup trial to have him thrown out. They charged him with bias and with having a personal prosecutorial interest in the outcome. This, they said, went far beyond the issue of guilt or innocence.

The response of the U.S. Court of Appeals was a unanimous verdict upholding Judge Sirica and praising his conduct of the Watergate cases. One intimation in the lawyers' brief had a ring of truth: If it had not been for Sirica's probing questions in the initial trial of the Watergate burglars, the involvement of the principals — former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and the two White House triggermen, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman — might never have been known.

THROUGH HIS YEARS of experience, Sirica is thoroughly familiar with the constraints of the law. But he has never hesitated to raise questions that might result in justice being thwarted when it appeared the lady with the scales was being done in.

As the unedited tapes played in the courtroom show, former President Nixon clung to the belief that the burglars could be bailed out and the whole business put down to a prank by eager beavers in the Committee To Re-elect the President. He proposed that columnists William F. Buckley be turned loose to build up E. Howard Hunt, the Watergate burglar with CIA connections.

Sniping at Sirica has come not only from defense lawyers in the courtroom but from zealous champions of the now discredited Nixon White House. They have sought to show that Sirica is cruel, vindictive, a hanging judge.

Ironically, these same attackers have in the past been among those calling for "law and order" and denouncing the coddling of unfortunates who fall into the net of the law.

THE HOPE IS that the coverup trial will end before Christmas, unless there is a postponement for the testimony of Richard Nixon. Then, after the first of the year, Judge Sirica will have an opportunity to consider the hundreds of invitations that have come from all over the country asking him to speak and to take part in law school and bar association forums. Having imposed a gag rule on counsel, the judge has been careful to refrain from any comment off the bench.

It is an exercise in patience to sit day after day knowing that an inadvertent remark or a casual ruling will be seized on as ground for throwing the case out of court, or for overruling the verdict of the jury. The jury will, in the end, reach the verdict of guilty or not guilty on the various counts of the indictment. But the role of the judge in this, perhaps the most important trial in this century, is second only to that of the jury.

Sirica has become a national and indeed an international figure. Those who have known him over the years say his fame has made no difference. He is what he has always been: a bold disciple of justice.

IT WAS A STROKE of good fortune that the Watergate cases fell to this experienced trial judge with no flourishes or pretensions. Today he probably knows more about the intricacies of the whole Watergate intrigue than anyone other than a half-dozen researchers in the special prosecutor's office.

One of the sorriest episodes in America's history is slowly winding down. The American system of justice, despite the encumbrances, the barnacles acquired over the years, is working. The accused are having their day in court with the aid of counsel whose large fees are part of the penalty.

It is impossible to believe that this could ever happen again. The lesson of Watergate has been seared into the American consciousness. In that brightly lighted courtroom, the last act of this painful drama is being played out for all the world to see.

Democrats Not Breaking Up As Republicans Had Hoped

For months it looked as though the Democratic Party was in the process of tearing itself apart in bitter controversy as it has in the last two national conventions.

It doesn't look so any more.

From everything I can learn, there is going to be no blow-up here at Kansas City, no horrendous walkout.

There will be plenty of tough debate, a spot of heated name-calling, a lot of jockeying to win a comma or an adjective in the new charter.

THE MOST SIGNIFICANT political fact, now visible on the eve of this miniconvention, is that the Democratic Party is returning to its own political center — and this will mean a greatly strengthened party in the 1976 presidential campaign.

The factors which have brought this midterm meeting to a mood of workable compromise are these:

1 — All the diverse Democratic groups — liberals, New Left, conservatives and moderates — see winning the presidency in 1976 as well within reach. The November victories for Congress, for governorships and for state legislatures are a tremendous incentive to party harmony.

2 — The forces of the New Left, which nominated George McGovern at Miami, have been weakened since 1972. They elected about 35 per cent of the 2,500 delegates to the Kansas City convention, the moderates about 50 per cent. The other 15 per cent are nearer the center than the left.

3 — The most controversial issues bearing on the party charter were resolved in bitter, strenuous debate during the past year. On the crucial points, the moderates won. The New Leftists wanted to "Europeanize" the Democratic Party, create a card-carrying membership, vote on policies yearly, and impose discipline on its elected officials. All of this was rejected.

ALSO TURNED ASIDE was the New Left demand to maintain quotas to insure that the number of blacks and other minority groups, young people, older people and women, at the national convention would be proportionate to their percentage of the electorate.

Quotas are out, but something very worthwhile remains. The charter will require that each state adopt and implement a national party-approved affirmative-action program to insure that all minority and heretofore underrepresented groups are given full opportunity to participate in the delegate-selection process.

This aims at a reform of immense value. Until the American people democratically nominate their political candidates, it cannot be said that they democratically choose them.

Councilman's Plea: Let's Keep That Fishing Rock For Kids

Belvedere City Councilman Sherry Levit has put out a plea to Marin residents urging that Elephant Rock, a popular Tiburon fishing spot, be maintained as a recreational area for children aged 16 and under.

A sign on the rock points out that it has been dedicated to children's use, but adults often ignore the warning, she notes.

ONE ADULT FISHERMAN on the rock earlier this fall, in violation of the sign, cast his heavy fishing tackle rather carelessly and hit Mrs. Levit's Daughter, Vicky, 7, in the face. Vicky suffered two broken bones in her face, and her eyes were swollen shut for several days. The family had to bear the cost of extensive medical tests for possible eye or brain damage. Vicky still has one black eye.

In her rush to get Vicky to the hospital, Mrs. Levit failed to get the fisherman's name and notes that his only comment was that her daughter should not have gotten in the way.

Since then Tiburon police have stepped up their patrols of the area, Mrs. Levit says. But she pleads that the biggest responsibility should rest with adults themselves, who should obey the sign.

"Of course, the same thing could happen in some kind of accident involving young fishermen," she says. "But it's less likely since kids would not be using such heavy rods and tackle as grown-ups."

DETECTIVE JOHN KIM of the Tiburon police received a throught-provoking Thanksgiving card from two young people whom the department recently arrested for burglary.

The message read: "You must think we're awfully extravagant to pay 35 cents for such a simple little Thanksgiving card. But heck, money isn't everything. Anyway, you're worth it . . . and besides that, we stole it."

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Press Agent's Earmark On Tidal Basin Scene

By DICK WEST

WASHANGTON (UPI) — All sorts of speculation and theories have been put forth to explain Rep. Wilbur Mills' recent behavior. Here's mine:

Anyone who stays in the newspaper business as long as two weeks learns one lesson that sticks with him forever. It is:

Whenever something happens involving show biz people, always look around to see if there is a press agent lurking behind it.

RIGHT FROM THE BEGINNING I had my suspicious about the Tidal Basin incident involving stripper Fanne Foxe and Mills.

If ever an event possessed all the earmarks of a publicity stunt, this one did.

That impression was heightened when Miss Foxe turned up in Boston with a new billing as the "Tidal Basin Bombshell" and a salary five times bigger than her act had previously commanded.

There was, however, a major hurdle that kept me from jumping to conclusions.

LET'S ASSUME, for hypothetical purposes, that Miss Foxe's career as the "Argentine Firecracker" has fizzled. True to show biz tradition, she hires a press agent —call him Bernie Flackhorn —to hype things up a bit.

"I've got it, baby!" Bernie burbles. "You're in a limousine late at night with some government big shot, say the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"You speed through downtown Washington with the lights off to attract the cops.

"They pull you over by the Jefferson Memorial. The big shot gets out, face all bloody, apparently soused. Meanwhile, you leap from the car and jump in the Tidal Basin.

"Believe me, baby cakes, when that stuff hits the papers, your career as an ecdysiast is going to take a quantum jump."

Miss Foxe bats her eyes in admiration. "Bernie," she sighs, "you're a genius."

THERE WAS, as I was saying, one thing wrong with this picture. How could they have gotten such an august personage as Mills to go along with it?

That question was answered, at least to my satisfaction in Boston last week end when Mills showed up on stage with Miss Foxe and announced he was going to make her a movie star.

Miss Foxe was "about the 14th or 15th girl I've launched, and they've all been successful," he told reporters.

Frankly, I never dreamed that Mills was a closet impresario. Now that the secret is out, it explains everything.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Here Are Some Hints To Reduce '74 Taxes Before Year Ends

What can I do before Jan. 1, to reduce my taxes for 1974?

If you own securities with a long term loss then: (a) and you also have long term or short term capital gains, sell securities to offset gains dollar for dollar; (b) sell to realize not more than $2,000 of losses in excess of gains so you can deduct $1,000 against your other income. You can only deduct $1 against other income for each $2 of long term capital losses, but not more than $1,000

You can no longer file separate returns and take $1,000 on each return. A married person filing separately is limited to a $500 maximum deduction against ordinary income.

If you own securities with a short term capital loss then: (a) and you also have short term capital gains, sell to offset short term capital gains, plus $1,000 to apply against ordinary income. With short term losses, you can offset ordinary income dollar for dollar. Whereas, with long term losses you need $2 of losses to offset $1 of ordinary income.

You should be aware that you cannot purchase like or similar securities within 30 days before or after the date of sale because of the wash sale rule.

If you want to sell securities with a long term capital gain 1974 could be a good year.

The maximum effective rate on the first $50,000 long term capital gain is 25 per cent. If your income is not great, your effective rate is less than this. Then too, income averaging applies to capital gains. Also, if you have any unused capital loss carryovers, sell at a gain to offset these carryovers.
